Tense Watchful Waiting Ensues Over Ethiopia

Both League And Italy Awaiting Move By Other On Situation

BRITISH FLEET AT ALEXANDRIA

Torrential Storm Develops In Addis Ababa As Celebration Is Started

(International News Service)

The Ethiopian crisis entered a stage of tense watchful waiting today as the League of Nations and Premier Benito Mussolini each looked to the other for some definite move. Meanwhile each proceeded slowly and cautiously with determined plans—The League to draft a report leading to sanctions against Italy if she wages war, and Mussolini to make his armies ready for war when the propitious moment arrives. Each hoped, however, the other would make a conciliatory gesture first.

Leading developments were:

GENEVA—League's committee of thirteen approved in principle Emperor Haile Selassie's request for a commission of neutral observers to watch over his borders, while Britain approved system of "progressive sanctions" to be applied against Italy should she wage war.

LONDON—British plan drastic fleet increases.

ADEN—British gunboats rushed to Mocha, Yemen Port, at request of Yemen government to protect territory from unwanted Italian landing parties.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Sometimes insects stray from their native habitat as was demonstrated by the finding of a "praying mantis", an insect which preys upon other smaller insects and is a harmless enough bug for humans. It was found by Miss Mary Estelle Dwyer of 105 South Walnut street, on the porch of her home, and was brought to the office of The News, where it may be seen on the counter in the lobby. The insect is common in the southern part of the United States, but is rarely found this far north.

President Starts On Trip To West

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ENROUTE WEST WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT Sept. 27—President Roosevelt headed West today for a personal, first-hand glimpse of conditions that have resulted from two and a half years of application of the philosophies and policies of his administration.

However much the political aspect of his journey to the Pacific coast is deprecated, it really marks, in political minds, the opening gun in his campaign for re-election next year. He left Washington almost simultaneously with the Republican big-wigs, who have been meeting there all this week, conferring on ways and means of defeating him in 1936.

Going On To Exposition

Officially, Mr. Roosevelt is simply going to the San Diego Exposition in fulfillment of a long-time promise. But his itinerary has been arranged, and his speaking dates

Typhoon Hits Five Japanese Warships; Sweeps 60 To Death

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Sept. 27.—Turning Japan's war games into catastrophic reality, a raging typhoon today crashed down on five warships, sweeping 60 officers and men to their death in the foaming sea.

On land the storm hit with equal violence, killing at least 230. Two hundred more are missing and 84 injured received treatment.

Two Japanese destroyers, the Hatsuyuki and the Yugiri, were badly damaged in the gale, the naval office officially announced. Others hit, with losses to their complement, were the destroyers Mutsuki and Kikutsuki and the air craft carrier Hosho.

Deepest secrecy has clouded movements of the fleet during maneuvers so the naval office declined to reveal the whereabouts of the stricken ships. It is believed, however, that the typhoon caught them northeast of the Japanese Archipelago.

Two hundred bridges have been washed out, and hundreds of thousands rendered temporarily homeless as 75,000 houses were flooded by rampant streams swollen by the storm rains.

The dead included 11 soldiers who were members of a rescue party.

West Virginia School Board Head Is Slain

BLAME INSANITY FOR DUAL TRAGEDY

(International News Service)

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 27.—Temporary insanity arising from a belief he was doomed to die of an incurable disease and that his mother had been wronged, was blamed by authorities today for the actions of a junior high school principal in slaying the head of the Harrison County school board and then ending his life.

The Principal, James F. Tracy, 32, burst into the office of Dr. J. W. Corder, school board head, late yesterday afternoon, pumped four bullets into his victim and then ended his life with the same gun. Attired in pajamas, Tracy had made his way undetected from his home where he was confined with illness.

His mother, Mrs. Dora Tracy, for 13 years secretary of the superintendent of schools, was ousted from her job when the new board headed by Dr. Corder took office last July. Tracy left a note asserting he was suffering from cancer and that his actions were the best way out of his dilemma.

Laco Wolfe, former chief of police, was talking with Dr. Corder when the young slayer threw open the door. Wolfe pleaded with him not to fire but was forced to flee when Tracy threatened him with a like fate, he said.

Wolfe said Dr. Corder told him of a premonition that he would meet violence at Tracy's hands because of threats uttered by the nervous principal who was unable to resume his duties this fall as a result of illness.

W. A. Brady, Jr., Is Burned To Death

Son Of Famous Theatrical Impressario Loses Life In Fire

INVESTIGATION OF BLAZE UNDER WAY

(International News Service)

FREEHOLD, N. J., Sept. 27.—An investigation was under way today to determine the origin of the fire in which William A. Brady, Jr., 35, son of the famous theatrical impressario and half-brother of Alice Brady, lost his life late yesterday.

Brady was burned to death when the bungalow of Elsie Chisholm, press agent, near here was destroyed.

Mrs. Emil Hoffman, proprietress of an inn near the bungalow told the authorities last night that Brady had informed her yesterday morning he intended to spend the day in the house. She said he came to the inn with Miss Chisholm and another man. Brady bought several packages of cigarettes and said he was returnning to the bungalow while Miss Chisholm and the other man went to New York.

A neighbor discovered the fire and summoned firemen. When the firemen arrived they found the bungalow enveloped in flames and the heat so great they were unable to get close. After wetting down the ruins the firemen found his body. Near it lay a .45 calibre automatic, with five cartridges exploded. The extreme heat had discharged the weapon, the police said.

In New York, Brady's mother, Grace George, was reported in a state of collapse after learning of the tragedy. Last night's performance of "King Lady," in which she is starred, was suddenly canceled.

Brady had been married for a number of years to Katherine Alexander, also a well known actress, but for some time they had lived apart.

Miners' Strike Comes To End Next Tuesday

CONFERENCES END EARLY THIS MORNING

Pay Increases For Miners Are Provided Under New Agreement

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Settlement of the wage dispute in the soft coal industry caused general rejoicing today in the mining towns of 20 some states.

The big strike of the 400,000 union bituminous coal miners will formally end Tuesday—October 1—when their new working contract with the operators becomes effective. Their last contract expired in February and was extended five times on the request of President Roosevelt until it finally expired Sunday midnight and prevented the miners from returning to work.

Reach Agreement.

Ironically, the new contract will carry the nine cents-a-ton increase for piece-work miners—the amount demanded by the United Mine Workers. Disagreement over this single item was responsible for the strike which started Monday morning.

After both sides made concessions on the amount of the increase, the operators offered a hike of 7½ cents a ton and refused to budge from that figure. The union demanded nine cents and let all the operators understand it would continue the strike indefinitely unless the nine cents hike was granted.

"Naturally we are happy over the result," said John L. Lewis, union president. "We got everything we asked."

President Pleased.

President Roosevelt was also happy. The lone dispute within the industry had been a national sore spot ever since it originated last February. When told of the agreement, he penned the following message to Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, to read to the operators and miners:

"As I prepare to go to the train

ITALIAN TROOPS EAGER TO GO

Floyd Gibbons Says Morale High

Two Hundred Thousand Are Assembled For Ethiopian Push

RUMORS ABOUND ON ITALIAN FRONT

By FLOYD GIBBONS
(Copyright, 1935, By International News Service)

ASMARA, Eritrea, Sept. 26. (7 p. m.) (via Rome)—Hello, everybody! Down across the blazing desert from this mountain capital, at the port of Massawa, more Italian troops ships are arriving every day, bringing the present total of Italian forces to 200,000 men. One third of them are native troops.

Headquarters at Asmara, where I am attached to the Italian expeditionary force, are humming with activity. The streets resound to the marching beat of hob-nailed boots, groaning motors, and heavily loaded camels.

Eager For Take-Off

And the morale and spirit of the troops, in spite of all kinds of reports back in Europe about their condition, are the highest possible.

All are eager for the take-off.

Their equipment is the most complete that could be assembled here, with hundreds of thousands of tons of supplies in reserve.

Extensive road-building and other transportation arrangements are being rushed to make troops and supplies still more mobile.

The air is full of rumors and reports concerning the starting date for the march into Ethiopia, but nothing is definite yet.

What is certain is that Mussolini's African army is in readiness, awaiting only the word from Rome to go.

have been arranged, so as to give him opportunity for a cross-section view of the country, plus personal contacts, that cannot but have their political implications.

State and county leaders all across the continent will get on and off the presidential special as it rolls through a score of states during the next week. From them, he should be able to get a fair first-hand picture of conditions, political, economic, social. That is what he wants.

Mr. Roosevelt will deliver four set speeches between Washington and San Diego, the first at Fremont, in Eastern Nebraska, tomorrow afternoon. It is expected in this speech that Mr. Roosevelt will defend the AAA where it is most popular—in the heart of the farm belt which has profited greatly from the endless stream of benefit checks that have porned out of Washington in the last few years.

And it will be surprising, indeed, if he does not find occasion in this Nebraska speech to speak a word for the veteran senator George W. Norris, Republican, who twice bolted Herbert Hoover to vote for Democratic presidential candidates, in 1928 and 1932. Norris is 74 years old He is up for re-election next year and doesn't want to run. The administration hopes he will.

At Boulder Dam

The other speeches which Mr. Roosevelt will make will be at Boulder Dam, in Southern Nevada, on Monday; at Los Angeles on Tuedsay, and at San Diego on Wednesday. He has been working on them for some time. From San Diego he plans to board a navy cruiser, the U. S. S. Houston, for a restful three weeks cruise in the Pacific and back to the Atlantic seaboard via the Panama Canal.

The president left Washington after having allocated or ear-marked virtually all of the huge $4,800,000,000 work relief fund. The business of spending this money in such a way as to end the "dole" and transfer people from relief rolls to pay-rolls is now getting under way.

The two chief spenders of the fund, secretary of the interior-public works administrator Harold L. Ickes and relief administrator Harry L. Hopukins, were aboard the presidential special as it rolled through West Virginia and Ohio this morning.

To Cruise Canal

Moreover, they plan to board the Houston at San Diego and accompany Mr. Roosevelt on his cruise through the canal. This fact caused not a few eye-brows in Washington to be raised. For it is an open secret that Ickes and Hopkins have differed violently at times concerning their respective spending proclivities and have carried their differences to Mr. Roosevelt Now he is to have them on a secluded cruise together for three weeks—and this at a time when the whole business is supposed to be just getting under way. They will be absent from Washington for approximately a month, their subordinates, in the meantime, carrying on. Some of the wags aboard the special suggested that both Messrs. Ickes and Hopkins would welcome a month's respite from Washington if for no other reason than to escape the "squawks" of outraged and disappointed governors and mayors, whose pet projects were tossed overboard in the final rush to get all the 4,800 million dollars allocated.

To Cincinnati

The Roosevelt special was due to arrive in Cincinnati early this afternoon—to be boarded there by the warring factions of Kentucky Democracy for a brief trip through Indiana. Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt's suasions will be such that the blue grass Democrats can compose their differences, and put up a united front in the gubernatorial election this fall. Perhaps not. But the effort will be made. Senator A. W. Barkley (D) of Kentucky was aboard the train as it left Washington. He was unsuccessful in his efforts to persuade Mr. Roosevelt to make a speech in Kentucky on this trip.

At East St. Louis tonight, the president's train will be switched for Kansas City, where he will arrive early tomorrow morning and switched again for Omaha and Council Bluffs (Iowa) to Fremont Sunday will be spent in reaching the site of Boulder Dam.

Accompanying the president from Washington were Mrs. Roosevelt, who is to make a speech herself in Hollywood on Tuesday; Secretary Ickes; Hopkins; Senator Barkley; Senator and Mrs. Key Pittman of Nevada; Assistant Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman; Assistant Secretary of Labor Turner Battle; Keith Morgan, a director of the Warm Springs foundation; various WPA and PWA officials and Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner or reclamation. These in addition to the usual white house secretarial staff, newspaper correspondents, cameramen and secret service operatives.

ESTHER MAGILL GOES ON WITNESS STAND IN SHERMAN TRIAL

Tells Of Associations

Questioned by Prosecutor Owen A. Hoban, she said she worked in the same room with Sherman at the Whitinsville Machine factory during the last two years.

Q—In December, 1934, was there a change in your relations with the defendant?

A—Yes. We used to ride to work together every morning.

Q—In December, 1934, did anything occur?

A—Yes. He gave me $10 at Christmas time to buy a dress.

Q—Did you accept it?

A—Yes, for a few hours then I gave it back to him.

Miss Magill admitted she knew Sherman was married. She said he was accomplished—knew how to play the violin.

She said she met him at her home on a Monday night—the night of his orchestra practice and that they went to Caesar's rendezvous in Worcester.

She said they had two rye highballs apiece before leaving the night club at 10:30 p. m. She said they got home a little after midnight.

Tried To Make Love

Q—Where were you between the time you left Caesar's rendezvous and the time you got home?

A—We were in his car, parked at the side of the road.

Q—When you were parked was there any change in your positions?

A—Yes, we got out and went into the back seat.

Q—What did you do there?

A—We talked, and then he tried to make love to me. I told him he hadn't ought to, that it was just a friendly visit. He said all right.

But, the Junoesque girl admitted, they went out two weeks later on another Monday night, had some drinks and parked the car on Purgatory road, a Whitinsville highway, on the way home.

Q—Where were you and Sherman sitting when you first parked?

A—In the front seat.

Q—Did you change your positions?

A—Yes. We got in the back seat.

Q—Did anything happen there?

A—Yes. We hugged and kissed.

A—No.

Q—Did Sherman say anything while you hugged and kissed?

A—Only that he loved me.

Sherman sat with his chin cupped in his hands, his eyes on Esther.

Five weeks later—on another Monday night when Sherman could get away from home for orchestra practice—they went out again, the witness said.

They went to Pawtucket, R. I., she said.

Q—Did you have some drinks?

A—Yes. Quite a few. I don't remember how many.

Q—Did you park that night?

A—Yes, off the Quaker highway.

Q—What happened that night?

A—We hugged and kissed.

Q—Did you respond?

A—I don't remember.

Q—Are you sure nothing else happened that night?

A—Yes.

Q—I am going to ask you another question. Did anything else occur in the car that night you parked on the highway?

Refuse To Answer.

A—(Defiantly) I refuse to answer on the advice of counsel.

Q—Is there any other reason why you refuse to answer?

A—It might tend to incriminate and degrade me.

She said she met Sherman the next day, but couldn't remember what they said. Then she told of her next date with Sherman—at the Sutton Center church.

Q—Can you tell us anything further about your relations with Sherman before or after the incident on the Quaker highway?

A—No.

The witness then said she had refused to go to the church supper unless accompanied by a chaperon.

Q—Was anyone else along?

club; James Scarazzo, president of the Tigers club; Thomas Flanagan, Grand Knight of the Knights of Columbus; Cosmo Galasso, Venerable Sons of Italy; Andrew Venditto, president of Knights of St. Vitus, followed by the following honorary pallbearers: Bernard Hanlon, State Secretary, Knights of Columbus; D. D. Valiensi, H. C. Richards, Frank C. Summers, Alfonso Scarazzo, Sam Ross. Officers of the Sons of Italy were next in order.

Probably a thousand persons, many in cars, while others walked, followed the hearse to the church, to pay their final tribute. As the body was carried in the St. Vitus church, the "Office of the Dead" was recited by the priests, preceding the funeral mass.

The services continued with a solemn requiem high mass. The Rev. Fr. Nicholas DeMita, pastor of the St. Vitus church, one of Mr. Capitolo's dearest friends, was celebrant, the Rev. Fr. Leo Watterson, of St. Mary's church, was deacon; the Rev. Fr. Alfred Henke, assistant pastor of the St. Vitus church, was sub-deacon; the Rev. Fr. W. M. F. Galvin, of the St. Mary's church, master of ceremonies and the Rev. Fr. Vincent Galliano, of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary church, Ellwood City, was organist and chanter. The mass was said in Gregorian Chant.

The Rev. Fr. Leo Watterson, of the St. Mary's church conducted the cemetery services which were brief and most appropriate.

In the draped King Humbert hall, Division street, several thousand persons passed the flower banked bier last night. Several hundred members of the Sons of Italy, of which Mr. Capitolo was treasurer, also paid their last tribute to their comrade, with prayers. John DeLorenzo read the customary Sons of Italy rituals.

MINERS' STRIKE COMES TO END NEXT TUESDAY

I am made happy by your good news. Will you tell the hundreds of thousands of coal miners and the many operators the agreement will make my long deferred vacation a greater pleasure, and also that this is a splendid example of the usefulness of the principle of collective bargaining to which we are all committed."

New Contract Provisions.

Here is what the new contract provides:

An increase of 50 cents a day for day workers.

An increase of 10 per cent for workers who do "dead work".

The union started the negotiations by originally demanding:

A 20 per cent increase in pay for "dead work".

A six-hour day.

An increase of 50 cents a day for those workers who do more carpentry and other work in the mines.

Both sides agreed to continue the existing working hours—35 hours a week.

Some Opposition.

Certain southern operators are understood to oppose the new contract because it does not give the southern operators a 40-cent differential over the northern operators. Until they sign the agreement their union miners will continue on strike. It is generally felt that most of them, if not all, will fall in line.

"I'll see you Tuesday," became the popular by-word among the idle miners today.

That's when they will return to the pits to bring out the black dirt. . . . And they're happy over the settlement of the strike and their wage increase even though their next pay check will be shy a week's pay.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Two hundred members of the policy committee of the United Mine Workers today began drafting the call that will eventually send 400,000 soft coal miners back to work next Tuesday.

In the meantime about 14,000 miners in the southern Appalachian fields will remain away from the pits until the operators can come to some agreement as to differentials. Union leaders said today they believed individual producers in those fields will work out individual contracts with the miners.

Under the contract just negotiated there is a provision that within 15 days a meeting shall be held to discuss the whole matter of differentials.

What's in a name? Well, he usually turns out a great and good man if the fellers call him "Stinker".

A leading event of this evening will be the "calendar tea" which will be given in the Second U. P. church at 8 o'clock. Various months of the year will be depicted at the 12 tables at which the guests will be seated for the entertainment program and luncheon. In the neighborhood of 200 people are expected to attend.

One of the features will be a miniautre flower show, and a short talk on "Flower Shows" will be given by Mrs. William Howley, of the Lawrence County Garden Club.

Class Honors Members

On Thursday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cox, members of the Friendship class of the Harbor U. P. church, tendered a farewell party for two of its number, Anne Cifra and Mary Miller, who will enter nurses training at the Jameson Memorial hospital on October 1.

Games and chat formed the pastime of the leisure period, and following, a tempting collation was served.

In behalf of the organization, Charles Cox, teacher of the membership, presented a gift to Miss Cifra and Miss Miller.

Legion Auxiliary Party.

This evening the American Legion auxiliary members will entertain at a social function in the Legion Home, beginning at 8 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded for card contests and bingo, with Mrs. Sara McClafferty, chairman, and committee in charge.

Theta Nu Club.

Several rounds of bingo furnished amusing entertainment for the Theta Nu club, gathered Thursday evening, in the home of Mrs. Thomas Aiken on Adams street. Later, a tasty repast was enjoyed, the hostess being assisted in serving by Mrs. Lillian Connors. Yellow and gold tones prevailed in appointments.

On October 25 the group will be guests of Mrs. Connors at her home on Williams street.

BLAMING THE DROUGHT

DURING the first six months of this year American foreign trade has shown a slight increase as compared with the first half of last year. All of the increase, however, has been on the import side. The value of exports fell off from $1,036,054,000 to $1,023,981,000, a loss of approximately $12,000,000. At the same time imports increased from $863,843,000 to $994,559,000, a gain of about $130,000,000.

In explaining the change the Department of Commerce declares that "there was a large increase in the imports of foodstuffs, partly as a result of higher domestic prices following the drouth of last year. The marked decline in the volume of our exports of crude materials, particularly raw cotton and foodstuffs, including wheat, meats and fats, may be attributed in part to the influence of the same factors."

It is commendable for the Department of Commerce to stand thus loyally by its sister agency, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, but it would have been more commendable had a complete explanation been issued, remarks the Baltimore Sun. Such an explation would have shown that by restricting production and by artificially boosting prices above the world level through crop loans, price fixing and the like, the AAA has invited foreign competition in the domestic farm market and impaired foreign markets for our agricultural produce.

CHANCE TO THINK

One of the opportunities men greatly need these days is solitude for thinking. The only chance for that, according to Dr. George B. Cutten, president of Colgate University, is to be found in fishing.

He was addressing the New York state division of the Izaak Walton league, which may explain his viewpoint. Fishing, he said, "offers a real escape from the complexities of modern life," and the "only opportunity for real thinking."

A non-fisherman—and there are some—may question whether it doesn't depend a little on the type of fishing practiced. Surely a man doesn't do much abstract thinking on life and its problems while he is battling some strong and lively game fish. Or does he?

As to the need for occasional solitude and periods of undisturbed thought, there can be prompt agreement. Unfortunately too many persons don't know how to go about it even when they feel the need vaguely. Too much dependence on the radio as a background for reading and conversation, too much dependence on entertainment for all leisure moments, have rather crowded out "right loneliness" and private thinking.

SCARCITY OF KINGFISHES

Huey Long might well have said with Louis XV: "After me the deluge." For among the Louisiana followers of the "every man a king" philosophy it is only too evident that every man is not a Kingfish. Already there is squabbling among the leaders of different Long factions, but the stake in the share-the-wealth program is too big to be abandoned. It can therefore be expected that the leaders will pile aboard the band wagon whenever that vehicle presents a high degree of visibility.

The preacher of Long's funeral oration, Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, thinks he has caught up the mantle of the assassinated senator. In advance of any conference to pick a ticket he has brought out candidates for Long's seat and for a successor to the aptly initialed Governor O. K. Allen. Mr. Smith is a rabble rouser of sorts, and from Washington, as the secretary of the prospective new senator, he would, it is assumed, direct the unremitting propaganda Long carried on.

This is easier said than done. The movement, such as it was with its appeal to the gullible, focused upon the personality, even the tones of voice, of Huey. It was the picturesqueness of Huey in the senate, his audacity in challenging President Roosevelt, his inviting the contumely and actual hatred of his Democratic associates (sic) in the senate that endeared him to a lot of people who should have known better. The arguments sent broadcast under government frank and even the silver voice of the greatest pulpiteer of all the parishes are no substitute for the "qualities" Long displayed.

In the eighteen months that ended June 20, 1935, 51,200 persons met death in motor crashes in this country. More than 1,300,000 were injured.

The bare statistics, thought provoking as they are, cannot give an adequate picture of the horror of major automobile accidents. Figures cannot express broken bones—mangled bodies—crushed skulls—obliterated features—decapitated bodies—and all the rest of the results of fatal motor crashes. Nor can figures picture the tragedy of parentless children and broken-hearted dependents of the victims of recklessly driven cars.

In a recent article in Readers' Digest, F. C. Furness wrote: "A first-class massacre is only a question of scale and numbers—seven corpses are no deader than one. Each shattered man, woman or child who went to make up the 36,000 corpses checked up last year had to die a personal death."

That is worth thinking about next time you take the wheel of your car. Driving at excessive speeds may, if you get away with it, save you ten minutes in a fifty-mile run. If you don't get away with it, it may mean your death, or the death of an innocent party. Passing on hills and curves, weaving through thick traffic and taking other chances may save you a minute or two more—or it may mean a crushed body on the pavement, its bones twisted and broken, its eyes staring and sightless.

It's up to you—to everyone who drives a car. Is recklessness worth its horrible cost?

The cranberry crop is said to be below what it was in 1934. But it is to be strictly understood that the AAA had nothing to do with it.

So many prominent men have been killed in automobile accidents recently that some people believe that auto mechanism is being deranged from a distance by a mysterious death ray. We don't know much about the chauffeurs of these "prominent people," but the drivers around our town don't need any help from a death ray to jam things up.

Park Commissioner Robert Moses of New York objected to the number and kind of relief workers that were being sent him by General Johnson's organization. He said they were killing all the grass in Central Park by sitting on it so long.

Speed Is Power.
Scenes In Harlem.
The Dangerous Spark.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

ONE MILLION DOLLARS, paid by one hundred thousand Americans, including the "cream of society" and the cream of the gutter, to see an intelligent, concentrated, powerful young colored man, Joe Louis, deal efficiently with a white prize fighter named Max Baer; that is the story of civilization in A. D. 1935.

Joe Louis, real name Joe Louis Barrow, attended to his allotted task quietly, easily, like a Pullman porter putting away an upper berth; no lost motion, or nervousness, as Joe Louis folded up Max Baer and put him on the pugilistic shelf to stay.

IN SOMALILAND where natives are extraordinarily powerful, if you took along Mr. Jack Blackburn, who taught Joe Louis how to fight, you might pick out a promising young savage of 17 or 18 and build up a world champion, as far above Joe Louis as he is above any "white".

The difficulty for fight promoters is the unwillingness of "the money" to pay to see colored men fight each other. White money wants to see a white man fight, and, not being really sportsmanslike, it wants to see him WIN.

Japan produces giants that make marvelous wrestlers. One could be taken young, before his muscles became stiffened with overdeveloped biceps slowing up the triceps, and a champion might be developed, able to attract a "gate".

When a small sized Japanese wrestler, Matsada Sorakichi, came to this country long ago and tossed American wrestlers around until disease tossed him crowds went to see him. A wildcat in action, he carried barrels of rice in training.

THE INTERESTING, important feature of that Louis-Baer fight is the scene that followed. The "society cream" driving away from the fight through colored Harlem, in its big automobiles, passed solid masses of tens of thousands of colored men, women and children, lined up along the roadway's edge laughing, singing, waving hands, many dancing in the streets. The excited crowd was good natured; it had come forth to enjoy the humiliation of the white man, compelled at last to realize, if not to admit, his innate "inferiority".

Among the oddities in figures appearing on the books of the United States Treasury is a $20,000,000 government debt which creditors have neglected to collect. The debt has arisen through bonds which have matured but which have never been redeemed. Both the desire to pay and the money with which to pay are present in the Treasury, but since that department does not know who are holders of the matured securities the payment cannot be made.

HUSBANDS GIRLS WANT

What kind of husbands do most modern girls want? Rich men's sons or boys who have been brought up to know that a nickel is a big nickel as well as how to work? It wasn't so long ago that every girl had her heart set on capturing some rich man's son or better. Now it seems that things have changed. Most girls today want a husband who can toil as well as play bridge and attend socials and the like. A survey made at the University of Oklahoma reveals that even the modern co-ed wants a husband in perference to the socialite. In fact they disclosed they wanted a "man just like the man who married dear old grandma" providing that stalwart individual is a man of character—robust in many virtues, etc., etc.

BERTHA L.

Answer: Of course, your pocketbook will have to be the deciding factor as to how many dresses, suits, coats, hats, etc., you will take with you. But I will give you an idea of the types of clothes you will need.

Sports clothes—Knitted dresses, sweater suits, small comfortable sports hats and low-heeled walking shoes—should be brought along for wear on the campus and in the classroom.

Silk dresses of street length and high-heeled street slippers will be indispensable for the many informal afternoon and evening functions which you will find incidental to your college life.

Dinner and formal evening dresses and their accessories play a large part in the lives of most college girls, for there are proms and banquets and mid-season dances and numerous other activities which will require after-dark finery.

Ickes For President.
Has Done Thorough Job.
Hardly G. O. P. Possibility.

Central Press
New York Bureau
235 East 45th street

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—This writer is beginning to wonder whether he should have included in his series on Republican presidential possibilities the name of Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes.

The most thorough and sincere job in Washington, has been done by Secretary Ickes. Yet, today, that job—public works administrator—is being abruptly curtailed.

Harry Hopkins, head of the Works Progress Administration, a professional charity dispenser, is victor over Ickes. It was said that Ickes was not proceeding fast enough.

President Roosevelt himself is the person who dispossessed Ickes. At the same time, the president smiles on Ickes, invites him to ride west to Boulder dam (along with Hopkins) on his special train, and has Ickes in pictures with him.

IS ICKES A POSSIBILITY?

Yet Harold L. Ickes can hardly be considered a Republican presidential possibility. His name is discussed here merely because this column is trying to foresee any eventuality.

Ickes never has been with the regulars. His fights—and they have been terrific ones—have been for progressives, anti-regulars.

For years he was Chicago's foremost reformer.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt hove into view as a presidential candidate, Ickes did not hesitate to "go down the line" for him, although Mr. Roosevelt was a Democrat. Ickes believed that here was a real progressive.

Ickes and other progressive Republicans of the middle west and northwest thereupon sprang to Mr. Roosevelt's assistance.

It did not matter that Icke's wife, who recently was killed in an automobile accident, was a Republican member of the Illinois legislature. The man, not the party, counted.

Now, when (to the progressives' mind) the man has failed, should the progressives not withdraw their support?

If so, should they listen to any wooing from the Republican party?

And if the Republican party believed it could win (with all the vast patronage that would come to it) if it chose a man whom Mr. Roosevelt had humilitated, would it hesitate?

That is Icke's only chance.

MERELY SURMISE

Of course, all that merely is surmise.

Secretary Ickes may remain in the cabinet. He may believe the New Deal still is in effect. He may believe that he still can accomplish some good.

He does not have to be an office-holder. He has money and legal prestige, and he has character. He is a ranking citizen.

But if he should leave the cabinet, it would be one of the biggest "breaks" the Republican party has had in years.

Mr. Ickes is, of course, too progressive for the Old Guard—but at the same time business trusts him (and so does labor) as a man of sound principles and judgment.

In the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars in public works, there has not been a breath of scandal in his department. That may be the trouble—the spending has been so carefully administered that the money has filtered through instead of flowing forth in a thousand and one political streams.

HE IS 61

Harold L. Ickes was born in Frankstown township, Blair county, Pa., on March 15, 1874.

He was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1897. He then was a reporter on Chicago newspapers for four years.

Immediately upon his graduation he had taken up reform in politics. By 1905 we find him managing the mayorality campaign in Chicago of John M. Harlan.

In the meantime, Ickes began studying law, and in 1907 he began practicing in Chicago.

But reform candidates were to occupy much of his time thereafter. In 1911 he managed the mayoralityy campaign of Charles E. Merriam. From 1912 to 1914 Ickes was chairman of the Progressives in Cook county (Chicago); from 1914 to 1916 he was state chairman, as well as a member of the Progressive's national committee, 1915-'16.

Then Ickes swung to the support of Charles Evans Hughes for president in 1916 and was a member of the Republican national campaign executive committee for the election of Hughes.

Then the war came on, and Ickes was named chairman of the Illinois state council defense neighborhood committee. Following which, from April, 1918, to January, 1919, Ickes did Y. M. C. A. work in France with the 35th division, A. E. F.

In 1924 Ickes put in some more Progressive licks, being Illinois campaign manager of the presidential campaign of Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California.

Then, two years later, Ickes managed the campaign of Hugh S. Magill, Independent Republican candidate for senator from Illinois.

But it was not until 1932 that he backed a successful candidate. In that year, Ickes became chairman of the National Progressive league for Roosevelt and Garner.

His reward was the cabinet post of Secretary of the interior. And, because of Emergency public works, that post became one of the most important in the history of the cabinet.

THE HOW OF GOLF

Life gave him laughter, song and mirth
And landscapes lovely to the view.
With countless charms she decked the earth,
But man still wished for more to do.
Not quite enough of grief and care
To him from natura' causes came,
And so to add to his despair
Man cut some sticks and made a game.

While walking through the fields alone
He fashioned for himself a cane
And with it struck a little stone.
This pleased him so he tried again.
He strangely felt his pulse leap,
So straight and far the pebble flew,
He told his friends: "I'll bet a sheep
That I'll take fewer shots than you'.'

They paced the fields from day to day
And found it fun at stones to strike.
They made up rules by which to play
Which even now some men dislike.
Though pleasant seemed the sport at first,
When in a ditch the pebble ran,
In rage the loser loudly cursed,
And thus the game of golf began.

Now men with weapons more refined
Attack a manufactured ball
And suffer a great distress of mind
As in a pit they watch it fall.
What was intended sport to be
Is now a bitter source of woe
Which punishes men cruelly,
As golfers world-wide over know.

Plan For Use Of Old Post Office Still Pending

Apparently governmental red tape is about to strangle the efforts of the Works Progress Administration to secure the old post office for use as a headquarters. In the past thirty days the proposal has been untouched and it is understood that there is little hope of its being revived.

The fault does not lie within the ranks of the Works Progress Administration either locally or in the state headquarters. The survey of the building has been made here, the plans for the remodelling have been made and submitted and the idea has been approved both here and in Harrisburg.

After leaving Harrisburg the project ran into a stone wall of lethargy within the post office department, or the treasury department. As a result the relief building on South Mill street is being used as a headquarters and it is understood that augmented quarters will be rented in the downtown district.

The second floor of the relief building is overcrowded at the present time. There is insufficient floor space and light and air for the employes working there.

In the meantime the old post office building is empty, a convention hall for spiders and dust and in order to get sufficient quarters for the WPA headquarters, money will have to be spent for rent.

today held its first meeting as a "committee of thirteen" and approved "in principle" Ethiopia's request that a neutral commission be sent down to watch Italo-Ethiopian borders.

This step was taken as it was learned Great Britain had approved a graduated system of "progressive sanctions' to be applied internationally against Italy in case of war, beginning with a mild economic boycott and leading to gradually increased pressure ending in military sanctions—which Premier Mussolini repeatedly has declared would mean general European war.

Renounce Naval Treaty

London, Sept. 27.—American embassy officials paid a hurried and mysterious visit to the British foreign office today in the wake of published reports Britain is about to inform Washington of denunciation of the Washington naval treaty and announce plans for a drastic increase in the British navy.

Ray Atherton, counselor of the embassy, and Capt. Walter S. Anderson, naval attache, were the American visitors. Neither the foreign office nor the American embassy was willing to discuss the visit, although the purpose was understood to be to review pending naval questions.

Whitehall denied any note had yet been sent to the United States regarding naval treaties, while American circles expressed belief the British government had not yet reached a decision to denounce the already dying Washington pact.

In British naval circles, however, it was felt the decision had been made.

Storm In Ethiopia

Addis Ababa, Sept. 27.—A torrential storm of rain and hailstones larger than beans burst ironically over Addis Ababa today as the Ethiopian capital celebrated the annual feast of the Maskal, supposedly marking the end of the rainy season and this year having the added gloomy feature of heralding the impending Italian invasion.

Forty thousand of Emperor Haile Selassie's troops were assembled in the capital to take part in the great demonstration, but the rain delayed their review by the Negus.

There had been hardly any rain all week, and the ground about Addis Ababa began to dry out after the months-long rainy season. Dry ground meant the little flower Maskal would blossom, and it meant nature was preparing the way for invasion of Ethiopia by the armies of Premier Mussolini.

British Fleet At Alexandria

Alexandria, Sept. 27.—A great and powerful British fighting force of warships, airplanes, and marines converged today upon Alexandria, just west of the northern entrance to the Suez Canal and strategically of great importance in the impending Italo-Ethiopian war.

Residents of Alexandria were surprised by the sudden massing of the British fighting units here, which indicated Great Britain remains as firm as ever in her intentions of protecting to the limit all British interests which may become involved in the threatened East African war.

The British warships Wolsey and Ajax arrived this morning, with the Exeter, Escapade and Esk expected to follow shortly.

The aircraft carrier Courageous, with the first, third and fourth destroyer flotillas, the sloops Harrier, Hussar and Halycon, the target ship Guardian and the cruiser Shropshire, maneuvered with airplanes off the harbor during the day.

Later in the day the troopship Lancashire arrived, and it was understood she had 600 marines aboard. Nine hundred marines already are in Alexandria.

Today

great racial triumph Harlem's population of a quarter of a million members of the colored race laughed good humoredly at the whites, convinced that they were going home, dejected.

Here and there a colored citizen, slightly boisterous, would laughingly scrawl the name of "Joe Louis" in chalk, on the hoods of automobiles stopped by "red lights".

You observed that, in the crowds, those of lighter complexion, indicating "white" blood were most excitable.

It would have been easy for a riot to start, under such conditions, if some colored citizen had allowed his enthusiasm to go beyond the bounds of good nature, or some white man had foolishly resented the quite natural triumphant attitude of the colored people.

It is probable that fighting between white men and colored men, which might lead to trouble, will be discouraged.

ONE PIECE of world news you might consider even more important than the Louis-Baer fight. Italian gunboats unloaded landing parties at Mokha, an Arabian port on the Red Sea, in spite of protest from the Arab ruler . He appealed. The British sent gunboats and according to dispatches, "compelled" the withdrawal of the Italian landing parties. Such an incident might supply the spark necessary to turn the war from Ethiopia to Europe.

Prisoners Are Sentenced At County Court

David M. McMahon And Mrs. M. Belle Emery Sentenced On Lottery Charge

APPEALS TO HIGHER COURT WITHDRAWN

Drivers While Intoxicated Are Fined And Given Terms To County Jail

Sentences were imposed in Lawrence county court today by Judges R. L. Hildebrand and James A. Chambers.

Among the prisoners sentenced were David M. McMahon and Mrs. M. Belle Emery. This was the second time that they were up for sentence. On July 15, McMahon was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and to undergo imprisonment in the Allegheny county workhouse for eight months for conspiracy, in connection with the "numebrs" cases. On July 22nd M. Belle Emery was sentenced to pay $500 fine and undergo imprisonment in the county jail on a similar charged.

Both appealed their cases and were released on bail to await the result of their appeals. Recently the appeals were withdrawn and they were placed in jail, their bonds being surrendered. This morning they were sentenced on the additional charge of conducting a lottery. The sentence of McMahon on this charge was $1 fine and four months to the workhouse, and Mrs. Emery $1 fine and four months to jail. The sentences are to run concurrently with the sentences passed in July, so that the maximum time that they will serve is designated by the July sentences. It was claimed that they operated the "numbers" racket together at the home of Mrs. Emery on East Washington street.

Other Sentences

Other sentences passed this morning were as follows:

Henry Turner, aggravated assault and battery, $50 fine and six months and not more than a year to the county jail.

David R. Bollard, selling real estate without a license, $50 fine.

Rocco Pagley, aggravated assault and battery, $50 fine and six months to a year in the county jail.

Walter Crosley, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, $100 fine and three months to the Allegheny county workhouse

Clyde Carter, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, $100 fine and thirty days to the county jail, to be released in ten days, if the fine is paid. Statements regarding the case showed that Carter had four bottles of beer. While driving home on the Volant road, he was in a depression in the road when another car came over a hill and was forced off, but no accident occurred. Carter drove on home without accident, but the man whom he had forced off the road reported to the state police who arrested Carter.

Walter Fornell, selling insurance without a license. Sentence suspended upon the payment of costs.

John Wood, aggravated assault and battery, $50 fine and from three to six months in jail.

William Johnston, breaking and entering, paroled for five years upon the payment of $25 and costs.

M. A. Newton, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. $100 and costs and two months to jail, to be released in ten days if fine is paid.

Charles J. Redinger, operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, $100 and costs and thirty days to county jail.

Other prisoners are to be sentenced this afternoon.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Lord Edward Montagu, adventurous second son of the Duke of Manchester, today received a one-way ticket for a nine-months' sojourn in prison.

The young lord, who has a strong strain of American blood through maternal ancestry and who shocked staid England by running a hot dog stand at Maidenhead, popular resort town, was sentenced in Old Bailey following conviction on all counts in charges of theft and forgery of a banker's check for 17 pounds, seven-pence (about $85.14).

The charges were brought by Mrs. Violet Van Der Elst, wealthy widow known publicly for her widely-reported demonstrations against capital punishment. Lord Montagu was charged with forging the check while serving as Mrs. Van Der Elst's secretary.

WHAT FACES TROOPS OF MUSSOLINI

This map, at a glance, shows the wild terrain which the Italian army will have to master to conquer the loyal troops of Emperor Haile Selassie in case of war in Ethiopia. Valuable deposits of minerals and oils are guarded by lofty mountains and dry, oven-like deserts which become dripping and morass-like in the rainy season. Roads are few and there is only a single ralroad.

Senator Clark Back On Stand

Continues Defense In Trial For Alleged Bribery At Harrisburg

LAWRENCE MAY GIVE TESTIMONY

By J. WILLIAM THEIS
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 27.—State Senator William H. Clark, charged with attempted extortion and malfeasance in office, was to return to the witness stand today for the state's final attack on the story that his actions were a "play" to trap administration officers into the same misconduct of which he is accused.

Now entering its fifth day, the trial of the ailing Chester Republican was expected to go to the jury late today or tomorrow. With presentation of about 30 character witnesses, by affidavit and direct testimony, and completion of the silvery-haired solon's cross-examination, the defense expected to close its case.

In Own Defense.

Placed on the stand in his own defense, Clark testified for more than two hours in explaining why he had offered to trade his senatorial influence for state insurance business or patronage from the Earle administration. He was "fishing," he said, to "see how far they would go" after Secretary of Revenue Harry E. Kalodner allegedly offered nim jobs and the insurance contracts for his support of the "ripper" bill to oust William N. McNair as mayor of Pittsburgh.

At no time, he said, had he ever intended to consummate a "deal" with the administration to obtain continuance of state liquor store insurance held by himself and his partner, William Hulme.

David L. Lawrence, Democratic state chairman and secretary of the commonwealth, was drawn into the picture of political intrigue with Kalodner by the defense. A parade of Republican senators produced testimony that Lawrence freely solicited G. O. P. senate votes for the "ripper" with patronage offers.

May Call Lawrence.

Prosecution counsel conceded it was possible Lawrence might be called as a rebuttal witness. The Democratic leader was accused specifically by Senators Peter Graff, Armstrong, and Leroy E. Chapman, Warren, of offering them political appointments for their support of the McNair ouster, a Democratic measure.

It was Clark, however, who was the focal point of attention in the defense counter-attack. Apparently at ease, he related how Kalodner offered him, "as a practical man," a judicial appointment in Chester county, and the liquor store business, for his "ripper" support.

Clark told the jury of eight men and four women he didn't mention the "ripper" offer during a "barter" meeting with Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti and Kalodner last June 18 because he "couldn't have obtained any more information that way." It was at this meeting that the verbatim record of Clark's "bribe" offer was taken secretly by a mechanical "speak-o-phone". The conversation was "played back" in court as evidence against the defendant.

Unable to remember details relating to the liquor store insurance contract let in 1934, Clark did admit, however, that Morgan Bird, a "sub-agent" to whom he paid $7,000 of his $10,000 commission, had been engaged only a "week or two" before the business was obtained. The prosecution brought out that Bird was an investigator in the office of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot and that he had never obtained any other business for the Clark-Hulme firm.

Burglars Snap Own Pictures In This Shop

Without looking up, the desk sergeant at police headquarters knows it's Frank Aichele speaking and that another intruder has been for a "sitting" in Aichele's battery shop "studio."

For would-be-burglars who enter this ingenious proprietor's place of business invariably leave behind a self-snapped photograph.

Aichele, some time ago, tired of having his shop burglarized. So he rigged up an automatic camera-alarm device which has proved 100 per cent effective. Last winter an intruder broke into the battery shop, brushed against a wire which had been stretched across the store, had himself photographed and fled, empty-handed in a din of automobile horn-blowing which the wire also set off.

Recently, the burglar-camera flashed again. Police were furnished copies of the picture showing a startled negro.

Wanted: Texas Ranger Who Can Ride A Horse!

(International News Service)

DALLAS, Tex.—Believe it or not, Albert Sidney Johnson, chairman of the State Safety Commission, in charge of the Texas Rangers, was forced to turn down a request for a ranger who could ride a horse. There wasn't one available.

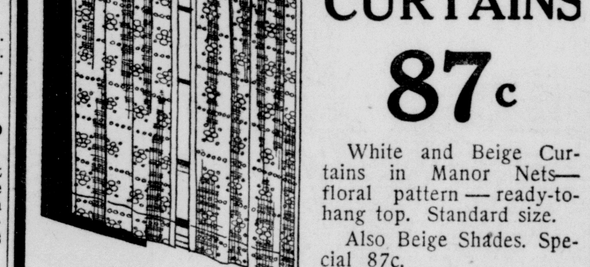

That's how much times have change. However, the situation is not so bad as it sounds, explains the slightly sheepish chairman. "We've got Rangers who are as much at home in the saddle as anywhere else, but it happened that all of this type were tied up. Several are stationed in San Augustine county, others were witnesses in court and others watching the gambling night clubs of South Texas."

The request for the ranger who could ride came from a West Texas county which believes some of them could help in a drive on modern cattle rustlers, who slaughter the animals in pastures and carry them away in trucks.

NATURE PRESENTS— Bluefish

WHERE FOUND

CHARACTERISTICS
Average weight four pounds (22 maximum); symmetrical. Color—steel blue.

TODAY'S DRAWING LESSON

Traveling in large schools, bluefishes move along like a pack of hungry wolves, destroying everything before them in pursuit of fish not much smaller in size. Incredible as it may seem, it has been estimated that this species eats or destroys ten thousand million other fish every day, each bluefish consuming 10 others daily. No fish of his size is more wild when hooked for he is one of the most active and unyielding fish that swim. The bluefish ranks as one of the best food fishes.

STATE SPECIAL SESSION TALK BEING REVIVED

Not Likely Until After New Year

Relief Situation In State Will Require Session, Is Understanding

CONGRESS ACTION MAY BE FACTOR

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 27.—Special session talk is being revived again on Capitol "Hill" but responsible administration spokesmen still insist the odds are long against the legislature being convened before the new year.

Everybody knows there will be a session after the first of the year—Gov. George H. Earle himself said that even before the 1935 regular session completed its lengthy grind. It is the date for the special session which has the "Hill" talking.

Special Session Certain.

The general expectation last June that the special session would be summoned early in the new year has not changed in official quarters by events since that time. Developments in Washington, perhaps, have tended to advance the date into January rather than February, or maybe March, but hardly more than that.

The situation, as outlined by administration sources, is this: There must be a session to provide for relief during the second year of the biennium beginning June 1, 1936, but prior to that, the state must change its social legislation and enact a state unemployment insurance law if it is to share fully in the federal social security law.

The federal security act, however, will not have any funds to disburse to states in the way of subsidies for old age, blind and widowed mothers' pensions until next February at the earliest. The late Senator Huey Long's filibuster which killed the third deficiency bill in congress made that certain.

Congress In January.

Congress meets the first week in January and probably will speed the deficiency bill to the president for approval. That would make funds available probably about early February.

With this background, political observers point out that from a political standpoint—and a special session prior to next year's elections can't be divorced from politics—the administration has nothing to gain by having a session until as near next April's primary election as possible without robbing the state of the opportunity to take advantage of federal laws. All but a handfull of the Republican senators come up for re-election next year.

Looking at the calendar from the vantage point of today, the probabilities against a special session this year unless absolutely necessary are again apparent. A session during October would tie down all the administration leaders who will want to be out campaigning for Democratic tickets locally and would not help those tickets.

November is punctuated by the election and Thanksgiving day holiday. December is broken up by Christmas holidays. But beginning with the new year, nothing—politically or in the way of holidays—breaks the calendar until the April election campaign.

Cat Helps Pup Defeat Feline

(International News Service)

BOSTON—When a man bites a dog its news, 'tis said. A cat defeating a dog in a battle of fur is ordinary, but when another cat arrives on the scene, arouses the pup, both joining to defeat the early victor and sending him to cover, it's news.

This unusual animal drama was unfolded to Edwin C. Lannon, who was aroused from sleep by the howling of a dog. He saw the dog licking his wounds and a cat perched for a second attack.

Over the fence came another cat, which surprisingly lunged into the victor, the pup recovering to join in chasing his adversary away.

FOG-PIERCING ROAD LIGHTS DEVELOPED

(International News Service)

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 27.—Dense fog vapors that choke arterial highways in definite fog belts of the state of Washington may be conquered if a state sponsored experiment proves successful.

Installation of sodium vapor lights, designed for fog penetration will be made on the new Pacific highway cutoff south of Tacoma. The four mile stretch is reputed to be one of the worst fog spots along the Pacific highway. The lights will be placed and the system completed within sixty days.

Extensive use of the lights was in prospect should the experiment justify the expense.

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa.—A pretty 27-year-old Philadelphia telephone operator went to the hospital here with a bullet wound in each leg—the result of a freak accident. Miss Emily Lister, the "hello" girl, handed a package to one of her companions to store in the side pocket of their automobile. A corner of the package touched off the trigger of a pistol kept in the side pocket and the bullet went through the upper part of Miss Lister's right leg and into the calf of her left leg.

Bootblack Tears Down Monument Hailed As Artist

His Destruction Seen As "Constructive Criticism"

(International News Service)

BELGRADE, Sept. 27—The town of Novi Sad is divided into two camps on the subject of a shoeblack who destroyed one of the city's famous statues. It can't decide whether he's a madman or a person of artistic taste and good judgment.

For years the man had his stand in the central square of the city, opposite a historic monument, often criticized for lack of artistic merit.

Passersby, panic-striken, called the fire department.

Firemen climbed the monument and tried to pull the man down. "Crash" down came a second of the kings. The man then broke off a piece of stone and defended himself.

Firemen hastily descended and turned two hoses on him. For 20 minutes more the man defied them. Until they brought ladders and attacked him from all sides at once he eluded their grasp. Then he was knocked off his perch by the force of the water. He was quickly enveloped in a strait jacket and taken away to an asylum.

The artist population of Novi Sad, who have for years protested against the lack of artistic merit of this group of statues are petitioning for the man's release on the ground that it was sanity and not madness which caused him to hurl down the statues. They were surprised that he stood the sight of the monument so long.

RECORDS TELL STORY OF POULTRY BUSINESS

Poultry records tell the story of profit or loss. With them the poultrymen knows what his flock is doing. Without them, he is working in the dark.

Record-keeping puts the poultry enterprise on a business basis. It is necessary if the poultrymen is to know whether his flock and methods are up to the high standard required before profits can be realized.

Poultry records usually and started October 1, because most of the plants are operating at full capacity at that time. The records should show inventory, cash expenses, and receipts. Egg production, feed consumption, culling, and mortality records are among those also necessary to check the flock's performance. Interested poultrymen can obtain more information by calling at the Agricultural Extension Office, No. 206 Post Office Building.

PRUNING PAYS ON RED AND WHITE PINE TREES

Pruning of planted red and white pines pays dividends in future timber values if done in the right way.

Wait until the young trees are about 12 to 15 feet high. Then, with a saw or long handled pruning shears, take off the lower branches. Never remove the side limbs from over half the height at any time. For pruning, choose only the thriftiest, straightest trees spaced not less than 12 feet apart each way. On an acre, that means pruning only about 150 and 200 of the best trees.

Pruning should be carried on in 3 or 4 operations, spaced about 2 to 3 years apart. Proper pruning produces quality timber.

PREPARE FOAL FOR LATER USEFULNESS

Care of the colt's feet is important in increasing his usefulness in later years. The relation between the direction of the colt's legs and the form of his feet is close.

Horses become unsound of limb when the wear and tear are not equally distributed, certain parts bearing an undue amount. Any deviation from the proper standing position will probably overtax certain parts and result in unsoundness.

Training of the foal should not be postponed until an attempt is made to break him as a 3-year-old. The foal should be taught subordination at the very start and not allowed to become willful or headstrong. Breaking to use of the halter early and kind and patient treatment will get a favorable response.

FILTERED CIDER MAY BE MADE AT LOW COST

Thanks to recent experimental work has been developed whereby the ordinary freshly prepared cider may be treated to give a very clear and immensely superior product for the market.

The equipment necessary may be made at home for a cost probably not to exceed $2. or $3. The freshly pressed juice is put into a wooden barrel and a few ounces of a special enzyme or a gelatintannin solution is thoroughly mixed with it.

After standing 15 to 20 hours, preferably in cold storage, the added material will have caused the cider to clear, and the constituents responsible for cloudiness will have very largely settled to the bottom.

The cider is next filtered to remove thoroughly these cloudy materials. The filter aid, such as diatomaceous or infusorial earth, is thoroughly mixed in at the rate of about one pound for each 30 gallons of cider.

The filter is constructed as follows: one end of a piece of garden hose 6 to 12 feet long is attached to an opening near the bottom of the barrel. The filter is made from a piece of unbleached muslin 3 feet long and about 12 to 14 inches wide. This is carefully sewed to make a tube 3 feet long and 3 inches in diameter. One end of the tube is tied tightly around the garden hose, and the other end is tied shut. It is necessary to have a valve of some sort installed at one end of the hose to stop the flow of cider when desired.

A wooden trough three feet long is constructed and equipped with a piece of copper screen of equal length and 6 to 8 inches wide. The screen is tacked to the inside of the trough in such a way that it does not quite reach the bottom of the trough. On this screen the muslin filter tube is placed in approximately horizontal position. The filtered cider is thus collected in the trough and run into containers.

The barrel containing the unfiltered cider must be elevated 5 to 10 feet above the trough in order to give a "head" or pressure sufficient to force the cider through the filter. The first 3 or 4 gallons of cider may not be clear because the filter does not work effectively at the very beginning. This first may be put back in the barrel and filtered again.

A bushel of apples may be made into filtered cider by this method at a cost of about 28 cents, or about 8 cents a gallon.

An even clearer and more attractive product may be prepared by running this cider through a germproofing filter, subjecting it to carbonation, and sealing it in sterile containers. Cider so treated will keep without fermentation. However, this process involves the use of relatively expensive equipment.

ECONOMIC LOSS CAUSED BY OFF-FLAVORED MILK

Regardless of whether farmers are selling milk in fluid form or in its manufactured state, they realize that off-flavored milk results in economics loss because the product lacks quality.

Milk becomes off-flavored through contamination by bacterial decomposition, enzymatic action, improper feeding practices, or absorbed odors. Bacterial decomposition is the primary cause of much off-flavored milk. This trouble may be controlled by following sanitary practices in production. It is necessary to keep the cow clean, properly stabled, healthy and free from disease, to employ a milker who is clean in his habits, who sees that all utensils are properly sterilized, and who handles the milk carefully so that it does not absorb any foreign odors and that it is properly cooled and kept cold.

Off-flavored milk caused by enzymatic action is comparatively rare. Such cases as appear are due mostly to individual animals. Off-flavored milk, owing to absorbed odors, may be corrected by not allowing the milk to come in contact with or to absorb foreign odors from cows, stables, barns, feeds, weeds and things that impart volatile odors which the milk can pick up and retain.

In the majority of cases off-flavored milk comes from feeds and weeds. Just this year, at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, out of 220 samples of milk that represented in all probability the highest quality of milk produced throughout the state, at least 75 per cent of the samples had the score on flavor and taste reduced because of a feed flavor found in the milk.

Those feeds which need to be carefully watched to prevent off-flavored milk are corn, alfalfa, sweet clover, or soybean silage; green corn, green oats and peas, green alfalfa, rye, and clover; dried beet pulp, rape kale, and cabbage. When cows are being turned out to pasture, there is a sudden change in their feed, and the succulent, pungent, green shoots of early pastures imparts a strong flavor to the milk. In too many pastures there are weeds that create off flavors in milk. An aid to help solve the pasture and feed odor problem is to take the cow off pasture at least 2 to 3 hours prior to milking and not to allow the cattle access to anything but the grain mixture until after they have been milked.

ADEQUATE DIET HELPS PROVIDE GOOD TEETH

Our old, the adequate diet, knocks at your door and if you will but heed his call, you and especially your children can be assured of better teeth, says Miss Mary Vogle, home economic extension representative.

Perhaps many persons have about decided that the so-called adequate diet may be compared to the cureall remedies that constantly flood the markets. When it is realized, however, that this selfsame diet is based upon scientific research and experimentation, is it little wonder that this has been used as the basis for Doctor Drain's work on children's teeth.

Dr. Charles Drain is association professor of Preventive and Children's Denistry at the University of Iowa, and has been studying for the past 10 years, with his co-worker, J. D. Boyd. M. D., the nutritional control of dental caries.

The following daily diet for the child has been suggested by these doctors in order to reduce and prevent tooth decay.

1. One quart of milk.
2. One serving of egg, meat, or fish.
3. Two servings of vegetables (one half cup each serving).
4. One orange or tomato (one half cup of tomato juice may be substituted.)
5. One serving besides of fresh, cooked, or canned fruit.
6. One teaspoon of cod liver oil.
7. Six teaspoons of butter.
8. The rest of the diet to be made up of cereal, sugars and other foods to fulfill the caloric requirements of the child.

Infatuated Woman 'Courts' Senator By Mail 10 Years

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—For ten years "Sadie" has written a daily letter to Senator David I. Walsh, speaking of a Honolulu honeymoon and her love for him. For 10 years Senator Walsh has ignored the letters and the identity of the woman has remained a secret.

The senator is unmarried.

His secretary, Joseph Hurley, however, has broken a long silence on the mysterious woman, admitting that she is a dignified, middle-aged retired Washington, D. C. school teacher. Senator Walsh, Hurley says, has never met the woman, who comes to his Washington office once a month to inquire about his health.

The woman also attends all the meetings of the senate to catch a glimpse of the man whom she fell in love with when she heard him speak.

Secretary Hurley says: "She is very polite, has never attempted to force her attentions upon the senator, has never accosted him in the street, never visited his private quarters or even sought to meet him personally."

Hurley would not reveal her name.

Senator McAdoo Suffers Injury In Auto Crash

California Senator Cut On Face As Auto Crashes In Los Angeles

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27.—Suffering painful but not serious injuries U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo today was recovering after a traffic accident which may prevent him attending the ceremonies at which President Roosevelt will dedicate Boulder Dam Monday.

The 71-year-old senator was injured when his car collided with a telephone pole after he had swerved to avoid another machine, which failed to stop.

At the hospital, where McAdoo was joined by his 26-year-old bride, the former Doris Cross, it was said six stitches were required to close a wound on the senator's nose, and that his chest had been injured, although X-rays did not reveal any broken bones.

It will be necessary for McAdoo to remain in the hospital several days, it was said.

Changes His Airplane Into A Motor Vehicle When Going Appears Bad

(International News Service)

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 27.—James G. Ray, veteran Willow Grove airplane pilot, found a way safely to cross the Allegheny mountains, "Graveyard of Aviators."

An autogiro, which can be landed at the foot of the mountains, converted into a motor car, and driven over the dangerous section, was the basis of Ray's discovery.

Flying from Cleveland to Willow Grove recently, the veteran aviator was forced down by a fog at Blandenburg, Pa., at the foot of the mountains. He landed, unloosened a few nuts and bolts on the rotor of the plane, and folded the blades.

Ray wheeled the craft to the roadway and drove off at a rate of 20 miles per hour.

He reassembled the plane at Tyrone, 10 miles distant, took off, and landed at his destination a short time later.

The plane, which is about the size of a motor car, was built for experimental purposes for the U. S. Department of Commerce.

STAMP NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE

BY JOHNRAE EARL, SEC. NEW CASTLE STAMP CLUB.

By JOHNRAE EARL, Sec'y.
New Castle Stamp Club

Good news or sad news, depending upon your opinion of new commemorative stamps, has arrived. The Post Office Department at Washington, D. C., has put their O. K. on the Boulder Dam Stamp and they have also advanced the date of its issuance to September 30 in Boulder City, Nevada, and October 1 in Washington, D. C. Following that date they will be sent over the United States as soon as distribution will permit.

Perhaps you are wondering just what this new stamp will look like, therefore, a bit of description at this point might be very enlightening.

Enclosed within a double line border, the new stamp is to be printed in purple ink, and will have as its central subject a view of the Boulder Dam reproduced from an airplane picture taken at a low altitude showing the Colorado River gorge both above and below the construction line. Across the bottom of the stamp in a white panel will be the denomination designation "3c" at each end. Along the base of the stamp will be the words "U. S. Postage" in dark Roman lettering. Immediately above this inscription within a narrow panel with white edges and dark background is to be the inscription: "Boulder Dam—1935." in White Gothic lettering. This will be a vertical stamp.

The new Boulder Dam stamps are to be printed in sheets of fifty, and the Post Office Department has requistioned fifty million on the initial printing.

Stamp collectors desiring first-day cancellations on September 30 may send a limited number of addressed envelopes, not to exceed ten, with a cash or postal money order remittance payable to the Postmaster, Boulder City, Nevada, covering the value of the stamps required for affixing. Owing to the delay in the decision to issue the stamp, packages of covers bearing the postmark of the sender's post office to and including September 28 will be accepted by the Postmaster at Boulder City.

A Trip To French Somaliland

French Somaliland (or Somali coast as it is often called) lies on the African west coast, across the Gulf of Aden from the southern tip of Arabia. It is a land of scorching sand and sun-blackened rock. There is little to see but the low, sprawling town of Djibouti, with its motley villainous looking crew of Somali blacks, hooded Arabs, stalwart Abyssinians, Indians with turbans, and hawk-faced Jews and a few European traders. For the most part the population is native, born to endure the searing heat in ignorance of the existence of better and happier climes. A native beating a drum is shown on one of the stamps, above the French name: "Cote Francaise des Somalis."

A railroad connects Djibouti with Abyssinia: and the town also boasts a good harbor, where the natives work listlessly at fishing or drag for shells that will polish into mother-of-pearl. Except for these, and some salt mines in the desert back country, there is practically nothing of value in the land.

There is one strange product, however. Every one has read of the gifts of frankincense and myrrh made by the Three Wise Men when Christ was born. Most of the supply of these substances, which are made from the gums of certain trees, comes from the forsaken city of Djibouti.

Puzzles Collectors

The inscription "Utramar" on certain Cuban stamps has puzzled many collectors. This word merely means "beyond the sea," and was placed on all stamps used in Spanish Colonies in the last century. They circulated concurrently in both Cuba and in Porto Rico, although at the time the two island colonies had varying monetary systems.

In 1873 there was such a terrific drop in the postal revenues of Porto Rico that an investigation was ordered. The postal burden had not diminished, but the sale of stamps had dropped virtually to a standstill.

The explanation of this was soon apparent when a group of persons were discovered buying the "Ultramer" stamps in Cuba at their face value, and then crossing to Porto Rico where the stamps were sold below their face value in Porto Rican money. The exchange left the persons engaged in the scheme with a nice profit, but it left many stamps unsold in the Porto Rican post offices.

To put an end to the illicit scheme which was due to the fact that the stamps could be purchased in Cuba with paper money and in Porto Rico with gold, the postal authorities ordered all Porto Rican stamps surcharged with the initials of the Governor-General of the Colony. The Cuban stamps were not surcharged, and stamps without the surcharge, known as a "rubrica," were not valid for postage in Porto Rico.

Mother's Day Stamps

I am very sorry to say that I misplaced a letter that I received from one of my readers inquiring about Mother's Day stamps, and am therefore taking this opportunity to answer it.

The value of this stamp at the present time is not high. A used copy of the stamp is worth from one to two cents, while the unused copies of the stamp is worth from five to six cents each. If this reader cares to inquire about anything that I might have missed in the letter I would greatly appreciate it if she would drop me a postal card with the name and address and the question.

PRETTY, PLEASE

"So you've bought an automobile, have you? Do you drive it or does your wife drive it?"

"Neither of us drives it. We coax it."

The righteous are easy to identify. They are the only ones who get mad if you claim to be more righteous than they are.

CHILD'S FEAT IN SAVING FATHER BRINGS AWARD

(International News Service)

PRETORIA, Transvaal, Sept. 27—An 11-year-old school-boy, Gerald Cox, of Sunnyside school, Prestoria, has been awarded the Royal Humane society's bronze medal for conspicuous bravery here.

This is in recognition of his feat in saving his own father from drowning in dramatic circumstances.

In January last the boy, his father and another friend, were fishing at Gordon's Bay where they were on holiday. Mr. Cox slipped off a rock and fell into the sea.

Gerald immediately dived in after him. He helped him to keep his head above water for nearly two hours. The pair of them were then rescued by a passing fishing boat.

The presentation was made by the Mayor of Pretoria who declared that such an iron test came seldom to one so young and, therefore, it was all the more gratifying that it met with such courage.

Landon Pushes Ahead In Race

Is Gaining Ground As Prospective Republican Nominee For President

BELIEVE BORAH LOSING STRENGTH

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S street
By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—Recent meetings of G. O. P. politicians in Washington have given the impression of a decided increase in sentiment in favor of Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas as Republicanism's candidate next year.

I suspect that, on a straw poll of the party experts today, he would out-vote Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

A few weeks ago the straw votes unquestionably were predominantly for Borah, but this was not because they preferred him "per se"; it was because they believed him to be the only possibility with whom they conceivably might win. Now they are gravitating to the conclusion that they might win with Landon. Many of them would rather win with him than with the Idaho statesman.

BORAH DOES NOT ENTHUSE

Borah is fairly acceptable to the progressives, but they have long ceased to consider him as dependably of their philosophy.

He is acceptable to the conservatives only on the supposition that he is the only candidate with whom they reasonably can hope to defeat President Roosevelt in 1936.

There unmistakably is a widespread feeling that he is erratic, inconsistent, incalculable.

Besides, he is past 70.

KNOX MOST OUTSPOKEN

Thus far Colonel Frank Knox of the Chicago Daily News is the most outspoken aspirant for the Republicans' 1936 nomination.

He seems to have considerable strength—for the nomination.

But experienced politicians, so far as I have talked with them (and I have talked with a great many) evidently are convinced that he would not stand a chance of being elected.

They acknowledge that he is able, forceful, a first-rate fighter and that he probably would attract plenty of funds to the Republican campaign chest, but they cannot see that he has demonstrated much of the right sort of popular appeal. Besides which, they classify him as too much identified, in the public mind, with the "old crowd." He undoubtedly would be better, political savants reckon, than a comparatively colorless candidate like Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan—but not enough better to win.

LANDON PUT FIRST

Not long ago I would have said that Republicanism's 1936 possibilities were, in order, Borah, Knox and Landon, not counting any others.

Now I would think that the order should be Landon first.

Knox, I surmise, should have second place; Borah appears to be fizzling out. If Landon imaginably can win, it necessarily follows that Borah disappears from the picture. Assuming that the Kansan is a better bet than he, he is of no use to the G. O. P. at all.

GOOD PUBLICITY FOR LANDON

Landon, until very lately, has had little national advertising.

At present he is getting a good bit of it and of just the right kind. He's economical and can attack Rooseveltian spending with a good conscience. He's a budget-balancer and can consistently find fault with Washington for its enormous failure to make both ends meet.

Everything he has said has been just the right thing.

He has pointed to the Rooseveltian policy of subordinating individual rights to the state's—"a la" Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin. And has made a pretty good case.

To conservatives he is only a moderate liberal.

He is a moderate liberal to radicals.

His geography is exactly correct.

John--The Minister Of The People

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

III John, 11—"Beloved, imitate not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: he that doeth evil hath not seen God."

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 29 is the Third Epistle of John, the Golden Text being verse 11, "Beloved, imitate not that which is evil but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: he that doeth evil hath not seen God." The following analysis of John's three epistles is quoted with the publisher's permission from "The Gist of the Bible, Book by Book," by Dr. Alvin E. Bell, Toledo, Ohio.)

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

IN THE THREE epistles of St. John we have the last word of holy scripture addressed to the church, for these letters were written even after the Revelation which stands last in our Bibles. By the year 90 A. D., when these letters were being written, the teaching of gnosticism was rampant in the church, with its denial of the true humanity of Jesus, as well as of his deity, and its effort to make a division between a "Jesus" element and a "Christ" element in the personality of the Saviour. John wrote his first epistle to rebuke and corrected this false teaching. In it he writes of the profoundest things in simplest monosyllables, as "God", "truth", "death", "life", "love" "light"; 'God is light".

John's Positivism

He writes with the positiveness of one who has personally heard, seen and handled the Son of God, and therefore can say "We know" and "We do know that we know". Forty times in the first letter occurs this work "know" or kindred terms, making this letter the Christian's best answer to the vagaries of agnosticism.

Fellowship His Theme

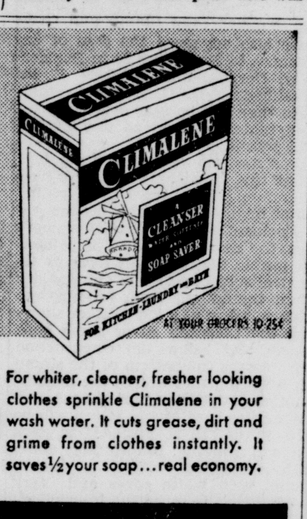

The theme of the letter is the Christian's fellowship with God through Christ. The nature of this fellowship is described as walking in light, for, "God is light". Hatred and sin in the life are proof of one's walking in darkness away from the light of God. The fruit of this fellowship is love, for, "God is love". One's love for God is best proven by love for his brother, and this not love in word only, but in deed and in truth. The enemy of this fellowship is the spirit of antichrist "that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh." The foundation of this fellowship is true faith in Christ as the Son of God, and this faith is the assurance of eternal life. "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God." Accordingly, the Christian fellowship is a fellowship with God in Light, in Love, in Truth, in Life, and all this through faith in Christ the Son of God.

Personal Letters

The Second and Third Epistles are personal letters. The keyword of both is "truth" which is found 12 times in these two brief letters. The Second Epistle urges Christian fellowship in brotherly love: "That we love one another. And this is live, that we walk after his commandments." But it also urges just as strongly against any fellowship with the "deceivers who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh". The Third Epistle was written to one Gaius to commend him for his gracious hospitality toward the visiting brethern who were traveling from place to place in their Christian ministry. It also condemns just as strongly the opposite spirit of hostility of one Diotrephes who was dominating the church in his own selfish interest.

In all three of his epistles as well as in his gospel, this "disciple whom Jesus loved" proves himself the apostle of love, for love is his "hobby". But he proves as clearly that he merits the nickname "son of thunder", given him by his Master, as the lightning of his wrath and the thunder of his denunciation flash and crash against the false teachers of his day who did violence to the truth in precept, in practice.

"Calumet is the best I've ever tried!"

MRS. OWEN H. FLEMING, 1235 JUDSON AVE., EVANSTON, ILL., PRAISES

CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE (2 eggs)

2¼ cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2¼ teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 25 minutes. Spread Fudge Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. (All measurements are level.)

Calumet goes farther! Only one level teaspoonful to each cup of sifted flour.

"I LOVE TO BAKE... I do lots of it. So I hope you'll appreciate that I know whereof I speak when I say that Calumet is better than anything else on the market that I've ever tried." That's what Mrs. Fleming thinks of Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder!

Why does Calumet give such astonishing "baking luck"? Why is Calumet different from other baking powders on the market?

It's because of the way Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick action for the mixing bowl—set free by liquid. A slower action for the oven—set free by heat.

Calumet's double action is so perfectly balanced and controlled that it produces perfect leavening. And it is perfection that you can always count on.

Now! Big New 10c Can!

Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, is now selling at the lowest prices in its history...The new-size can is yours for a dime! And the regular price of the Full-Pound Can is now only 25c!

Announce Rules Governing Work On Road Awards

Employ Bureaus Will Furnish Men To Contractors

SUB-LETTING IS ALSO FROWNED ON

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 27.—To insure employment of those most in need and to comply with Federal rulings, Warren Van Dyke, Secretary of Highways, today announced special requirements which will be made a part of all proposals for regular Federal-aid highway projects.

Local employment agencies will be designated by the United States Employment Service to prepare employment lists for each project. All qualified unskilled labor and such qualified labor of intermediate grade as is locally availyable must be obtained from this list. Application forms are designated for such labor as the contractor may need.

80 Per Cent.

The contractor will be required to perform with his own organization at least 80 per cent. of the value of the work. Subletting may be done only with the written consent of the Secretary of Highways and when such permission is obtained work must be done in absolute conformity with the conditions of the original contract and the contractor will be held responsible.

In any case where the employment agency fails to supply a list of employables at least 25 per cent. in excess of the requirements and within a reasonable time, the contractor is at liberty to secure available labor for his requirements.

Three major classifications of labor—unskilled, intermediate grade and skilled—are described by actual duties so that there may be no misunderstandings.

May Discharge

Incompetent labor may be discharged but replacements must be made from new lists provided by the employment service. No convict labor or materials provided by convict labor may be used. Labor shall not be permitted to work more than 40 hours per week, except that time lost because of inclement weather or shutdowns in any one week, may be made up during the next three succeeding weeks. Cooks, cooks' helpers, hostlers, yardmen, stablemen and watchmen are exempt from the hour restriction.

Minimum wages shall be paid at the rates per hour specified in the special requirements for individual cases. Contractors are made fully responsible for all wages and this obligation may not be shunted to subcontractors. Payment must be made in legal tender of the United States, with this exception that checks on solvent bank which may be readily and conveniently cashed in the community without discount or collection charges may be used. Where checks are used the contractor must see that facilities for cashing the checks are available.

Where camps are operated daily deductions for board and lodging may not exceed one dollar per day.

OPERATES ON LION

(International News Service)

ALMEDA, Cal.—Operating around the generally active jaws of Poncho, African lion cub, was so touchy a job that Veterinarian George H. Barry played the safe side by administering 15 capsules of anaethetic before attempting to remove two foxtails from the animal's throat.

Charles Bickford

Charles Bickford, screen actor, was mauled and chewed by a lion, on the studio lot and rushed to a Hollywood hospital in serious condition. The lion working in a scene with the actor suddenly leaped at Bickford's throat. The animal could not be beaten off in time to prevent serious injury to Bickford.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 27.—A strong bid for the 1936 Democratic and Republican national conventions is being made by this city through the St. Louis Convention, Publicity and Tourist bureau.

Pressing its claim for consideration, the bureau has pointed out to leaders of both parties the advantageous central location of the city with its new auditorium as a desirable convention site.

Representatives of the bureau will be sent to meetings of the national committees of the two parties at Washington. The Republican committee is scheduled to meet in December and the Democratic committee next January.

ATTAINS HIS GOAL, AN EIGHT-LEAF CLOVER

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 27—Dr. Edward J. Girard, orthopedist and "clover collecting champion" has realized a life's ambition by finding an eight-leaf clover.

Dr. Girard got his treasure, which he plans to mount and give to the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia, while vacationing in Haverhill, Mass. His find automatically recalls, he said, the $100 reward he offered six years ago for such a leaf. He still has a $500 reward up for anyone finding a nine-leaf clover.

CO-EDS DESCRIBE THAT IDEAL MAN

(International News Service)

PALO ALTO, Cal.—Stanford University coeds, writing in a composition course on their "Ideal Man," agreed that what they want in a husband is a "man among men."

He need not have a millionaire father, a fancy roadster, nor even an Apollo stare, Galahads are "out," unless they can qualify to the following, a typical passage chosen from the compositions:

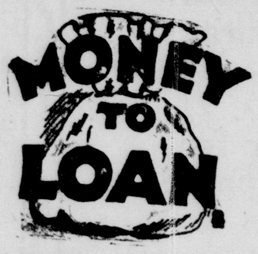

"He must be manly looking, but not necessarily handsome. He must be keenly interested in what is going on in the world and anxious to take part in it."

"We're looking for husbands, not prancing knights, and they must be intelligent enough to take an active part in the social and political reorganization of the new world."

City Anxious To Have New Jobs Started

W. P. A. Has Been Asked To Approve Jobs Worth $344,880.36

APPROVAL NOT YET RECEIVED

Council met in the city building today, approved several bills then discussed city projects which the council requested the WPA to approve. It was the opinion of some of the city officials that the WPA does not intend to approve them but other officials believed that the city should continue its efforts to have the WPA approve and start projects here.

The city has submitted many projects, in fact projects, which would result in a cost to the federal government of $320,409.00 and cost to the city of $22,471.36. They would provide 5,129 man months work. Of all the projects, not including the streets paving project, which again has been returned owing to the high cost of material and equipment, work has been started only on two —a pipe line at the sewage disposal plant and the Croton avenue hill fence.

According to G. R. Throop, city engineer, the projects which have been approved by the local WPA but which has not received action either at Harrisburg or Washington are as follows:

Storm sewer, Martin street; downspout survey; fire hazard survey; Rural avenue paving; storm sewer, Reynolds street; street and traffic signs (partly completed); traffic survey; stone wall, Butler avenue; stone wall, Municipal golf course; Water street wall; storm sewer, Cascade Park; riprapping of Crawford run; grading of Schley street; repairs to municipal buildings and placing of stone gutters along dirt streets.

The most costly jobs among the foregoing would be Rural avenue paving. The federal cost would be $26,273.30 with a cost to the city of $6,769.75. Riprapping of Crawford Run would be, federal, $20,844.45 and city, $98.40. To place stone gutters on the specified dirt streets would cost, federal, $203,589.15 and city, $3,930.82. The traffic survey would cost, federal, $1,180.00 and city, $117.

Usually, according to the city engineer, after the local WPA gives approval to projects they are submitted to Harrisburg. Providing the city does not hear within 10 days from the time the projects are submitted to the WPA at Harrisburg, it is taken for granted that the officials there have approved them and forwarded the projects to the WPA at Washington for approval.

The city is especially anxious to have projects started here so that men can be provided with work and improvements made.

Scout Merger Is Endorsed Here

Mercer's Approval, Expected Tonight, Will Unite Two Councils

If the merger is decided upon, Director Calahan said today, representatives of the Lawrence and Mercer county organization will meet jointly in the Penn-Grove hotel, Grove City, on October 11, to select officers and formally inaugurate the consolidated council, to be known as the Shenango Valley Area council.

The merger is expected to be approved by the Mercer men tonight.

Italian Editorial Points Out Failure Of League In Other Cases

NO SANCTIONS THEN DECLARES ITALY

(International News Service)

ROME, Sept. 27.—A stern warning against League of Nations discussions of sanctions against Italy in the Ethiopian dispute was sounded today in an unsigned editorial, attributed to Premier Mussolini, appearing on the front page of the important newspaper Popolo D'-Italia.

The editorial summarized phase by phase the critical international disagreement which it said had been considered but not solved by the league.

Geneva, it stated, has reached another crisis similar to that caused by the Sino-Japanese dispute.

In terse language the editorial pointed out that sanction were not "discussed, proposed or flaunted" when:

—Japanese armed forces pushed into Manchuria.

2—Germany tore up the treaty of Versailles by rearming.

3—England and Germany concluded a naval accord outside the Versailles treaty.

4—Bolivia and Paraguay fought over the Chaco.

"The fact remains that Geneva condemned the Japanese invasion of Manchuria without taking the smallest step toward the dangerous way of sanction," said the editorial.

The fact also remains that while the German decision of March 16 (to rearm) were openly condemned by the league, there was not even a whisper about sanctions."

Squire Zedaker Has Shod Horses For Fifty Years

NEVER NEEDED DOCTOR'S CARE

New Bedford, the western frontier of Republicanism, that is according to the last Presidential election, boasts a strong Republican in Squire C. L. Zedaker, who will observe his seventieth birthday on October 1.

Besides ministering affairs of justice and being the town's leading citizen, he finds time to shoe a few horses, which is his principal occupation in life. As a matter of fact, he has been carrying on this business for the past 54 years, and while business is not as brisk as it used to be, and the squire is getting along in years, he still clamps a nifty shoe.

If his present good health holds out, Squire Zedaker expects to live to be a hnudred. In all his life, he has never required the services of a physician for illness. Occasionally he would get in the way of a fractious hoof and acquire bruises and lacerations which might require the need of a little "doctoring," but he has never been ill enough to call in a physician to prescribe for him.

Squire Zedaker is New Bedford's representative on the Republican county committee and is a staunch upholder of that form of government.

Girl Scouts To Give New Course

New Castle Leaders Offered Training Course Next Tuesday Night

The training committeeof the New Castle Girl Scout Council, Mrs. C. R. Balph, chairman, announces a training course for new leaders to be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 on the first floor of the Pennsylvania Power Company under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Reis.

This promises to be quite a large class and the council is much pleased with the prospects. There is more and more a demand from the girls of the city for troops and it is only by the volunteering of these fine young women that the demand can be met. Character building is needed more now and will continue to be. Girl scouting is entirely volunteer in New Castle and is steadily growing. There are 454 registered girl scouts in the city. The council hopes at some future time to be able to again have a paid director, but until that time they continue to bend every effort to have girl scouting on a high plane. Any persons interested in girls and interested in having an enjoyable time while seeing the girls have the same, will be most welcome in the class. There is no fee of any kind. The class will run for six weeks, on Tuesday evening of each week and for an hour and a half. This is the third course Miss Reis has conducted and she has met with great success in all of them. Girl scouting is a great game with high ideals incorporated into them and anyone interested in playing that game will be welcome on Tuesday evening.

In these days of so much criminality among the young, it is gratifying to know that judges tell us no Boy Scout or Girl Scouts come up before them. The program must contain a great deal to make such a statement correct. It is hoped that many women will feel it not only their civic duty, but also their pleasure, to help in this good work.

MEET FOR FIRST TIME IN 19 YEARS

Warren K. Billings Tom Mooney

Tom Mooney, right, and Warren K. Billings, left, are pictured meeting in the San Francisco hall of justice for the first time in 19 years. Although at odds since their conviction, the two associates tenderly embraced each other. The convicted men were brought together in court to aid Tom Mooney in his fight for freedom and vindication.

New Deal Scored By Butler Pastor Answering Letter

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 27—Branding the administration's policy relative to what he terms the "deliberate destruction of food and clothing material" as "not only unwise but wicked" the Rev. W. E. Schramm, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church made reply today to President Roosevelt's letter asking the local clergymen's counsel and advice.

"I feel that I would not be true to the opportunity which you have given me if I failed to say something about the deliberate destruction of clothing material in order to advance the price of these commodities," Rev. Schramm wrote.

"Permit me to say," he added, "that I have never yet met an individual who approved this policy. I think it not only unwise, but wicked."

Boy Cured Of Limp By Lightning Stroke

KITTANNING, Pa., Sept. 27.—Lightning may not strike twice in the same place, but if it does, Jimmy Seifert, local high school youth, is going to pick out a certain spot, especially if he is in an automobile accident which results in a limp.

Seifert was injured in a mishap recently and spent some time in the hospital here. He walked out with a limp.

Attending a football game, played in a storm at the local athletic field, Siefert walked in with a limp. Lightning struck nearby. Seifert and a group of others felt the shock. No one was hurt, but Seifert walked out of the park without a trace of the limp.

Parents Worried By Son's Disappearance

WEST MIDDLESEX, Pa., Sept. 27—Alarmed over the disappearance of their 15 year old son who has been missing for five days, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Furey, R. D. 2, West Middlesex, today asked police to repeat a description of the boy over the district teletype system.

The son Earl has not been seen since last Saturday, when he left home on his bicycle. He wore blue overalls, grey hat and tennis shoes.

His parents know no reason why he left home except for his dislike for school. He was a Freshman in Farrell High. They communicated with all relatives in the district but found no trace of the boy.

DALLAS, Texas—Joe J. Murray, city water system claim adjuster, is still gasping from this one. When he answered the phone, Mrs. Mary McGee had a complaint to make. "I wish you'd check up on my meter," shes aid. "I'm sure it isn't registering as much water as I'm using."

Three Automobile Accidents Here

Automobile of Ray M. Stone, 614 Sixth street, Beaver Falls, and a car bearing Pennsylvania license U02A1 were in an accident with slight damage at 10:50 a. m. yesterday in South Mill street between Market way and East Washington street. Stone's car was parked and the other machine struck it.

K. F. Winger, 59 Pearson street, reported he was driving north at 5:30 p. m. on Pearson street and stopped at the stop sign at East Washington street. A Miss Gardner, he reported, turned right from East Washington street into Pearson street, hitting his car with minor damages.

Dr. C. H. Heaton Sends Letter To President

First Baptist Pastor Replies To Query From Roosevelt

Dr. Charles H. Heaton, pastor of the First Baptist church, in his reply to President Roosevelt's personal request for his counsel as to guiding the affairs of the nation, today asked the Chief Executive to "ordain and proclaim a day of fasting and prayer for the people of the United States that God may forgive our sins and heal our land."

Franklin D. Roosevelt,
Washington, D. C.
My dear Mr. President:

It is a pleasure to reply to your letter of September 24th.

You are to be commended for your fecility in making personal contacts with so many millions of people for your cordial spirit which makes us think of you as a neighbor and a friend for your wisdom in recognizing the high calling of the Christian ministry and for your evident sense of the weight of your responsibilities as our President.

It is true, as you say, that we ministers are in intimate daily contact with the people of our respective communties. To those who look to us to be their spiritual advisers and guides our relationship is very intimate. We are keenly sensitive to everything that pertains to their welfare and happiness for time and eternity.

Let me assure you that there are many in our community who face approaching old age and others who think of the possibility of unemployment, with far less fear because of the Social Security Legislation for which you have been so largely responsible. Your Works Program, too, is ameliorating the conditions of life in many homes.

I must say, however, that I have a profound conviction that the most important things of life are not material but moral and spiritual. It is righteousness more than tangible things which exalts a nation. In the realm of morals we are seeing a steady and an alarming decline in these days. I am afraid, Mr. President, that nothing can atone for the harm that has been done by the Liquor Legislation enacted under your administration. Yesterday as I went to my study I encountered a specimen of humanity who perhaps the night before would have passed for a beautiful woman and two teenage boys, presumably her sons, all of them so drunk that they fell prostrate on the side-walk a half dozen times within the space of one short block. That incident crys to High Heaven.

We believe that Almighty God rewards those who diligently seek Him. Why, Mr. President, do you not ordain and proclaim a day of fasting and prayer for the people of the United States that God may forgive our sins and heal our land?

Pledging you my prayers and my hearty support in all those plans and programs of yours which an enlightened Christian conscience can approve, I am

Very sincerely yours,
CHARLES H. HEATON,
Pastor.

Prevailing Wage Rates Assured

New Scale Effective October 1 According To Announcement Of Jones

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 27.—Payment of the "prevailing wage" on Works Progress Administration projects in Pennsylvania today was assured workers in the building trades industry by administrator Edward N. Jones. The new scale is effective October 1.

Heading the largest sub-division of the national WPA, Jones was the first of the state administrators to carry out wage adjustments authorized by Washington several days ago in a concession to the demands of organized labor.

In addition, Jones announced that workers in the two "lower brackets" would be given a 10 per cent pay increase with hours reduced to a standard 30-hour week.

"The prevailing rate for skilled workers, their helpers, etc.," the adminstrator said, "will be attained through a curtailment of hours to bring the total monthly earnings within the amounts designated under the present Security Wage schedules."

Jones estimated that approximately 20,000 workers on the WPA labor inventory would be eligible for prevailing wages in the building trades industries, while about 300,000 would be affected by the 10 per cent increase and reduction of hours to the 30-hour week. Professional and technical workers will continue at the present wage rate, with hours reduced to 30 a week.

COMMISSION PLANS FOR SAFETY RIGHTS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 27—The Public Service Commission has formulated a program for the modernization of red flashing light signals located at public grade crossings over steam railroad tracks in Pennsylvania which, it believes, will provide for greater safety for motorists and others using the crossings.

Application has been made by the commission for federal aid in modernizing the signals located at 905 grade crossings in the state at an estimated expenditure of $47,000.

The plan provides for the installation of additional flashing light units and reflector signs at crossings where automobile traffic on the highway is heavy, and reflector signs at crossings where the highway carries a medium volume of traffic.

Jupiter Pluvius May Win Pennant For Chicago Cubs

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Of all people, the weatherman may yet clinch the National League pennant for the Cubs.

Doubleheaders between the Cubs and Cardinals in St. Louis tomorrow and Sunday will be necessary in the event that today's games are rained out. Should weather necessitate the elimination of any one of the four remaining games, the Cubs would automatically win the pennant even in the face of three straight defeats since baseball rules provide that no championship season games shall be played after the last day of the regular season, which is Sunday.

However, a three-game series to determine the league title holder will be necessary in case of a tie, but this would be impossible should inclement weather prevent any one of the four remaining games.

A PAL TO THE KID

"Be Your Age!" Was What Belle Needed to Be Told. She Discovered That Being a Pal Wasn't All It Was Cracked Up to Be.

By PRISCILLA HOVEY WRIGHT

Illustrated by A. G. SKRENDA

McClure Fiction

A HANDSOME pair, Belle and the Kid; tall, blonde, shapely. Belle was thirty-eight and looked twenty-two on a good day and the Kid was eighteen and looked twenty on a bad day, so that they were often taken for sisters.

"How's this strike you?" asked Belle turning before the mirror.

The Kid still had an edge on thought Belle gloomily.

"So it is," she agreed suavely, "but the circus ain't come yet."

"It fits Madame grand," murmured Miss Moriarty, the salesgirl, with forced enthusiasm.

"I'd hate to have to sit down in it," observed the Kid, her blue eyes cloudy.

The Kid was occupying the only chair in the tiny fitting room so that Belle couldn't accept the challenge but she turned again until she got a good view of her back. She was putting on weight and just in the wrong place!

"I like a good snug fit in a dress," she said sharply.

"You've got it," murmured the Kid impudently.

Belle could see not only her back but the Kid; the Kid, slim small and smart, her hundred and fifteen pounds in a trim plain blue suit; her feet in little pointed blue kid slippers; a blue hat that was nothing but a chuckle on top of her blond bobbed head.

"Wouldn't I like to wallop her!" thought Belle.

"Perhaps a size larger would give Madame just a bit more fullness through the hips," suggested Miss Moriarty looking at her wrist watch. Thank heavens it was almost time for lunch!

"I've always worn an eighteen," snapped Belle.

"In the Women's department upon the next floor," Miss Moriarty continued to blunder, "you'd probably find just the thing. They have half sizes there and an 18½ would be just made for Madame. It would give Madame that wee bit of difference across the hips."

"I always go to the Misses' department," said Belle frigidly.

"We-ell, of course any one can see it's a perfect fit just as it stands," Miss Moriarty deftly shifted sail. "And the color is so becoming. I always think there's something so sort of regal about purple."

"Wrap up that purple dress," Belle commanded curtly, "and send it to Belle Cameron, Pandora Parlors, Tenth Street. Charge."

The Kid's eyes were smoldering and she bit her lip.

THEN there was lunch at Meroni's with Belle having lobster à la Newburg and French frieds and the Kid having a pear and pecan salad and a chocolate frappé.

"You ought to eat more." Belle critically regarded her daughter's neck. It was white, soft and alive with a pulse throbbing where a little pink choker hung.

"I eat all that's good for me," replied the Kid tersely.

Belle ate without zest. Really, the Kid was the limit. She couldn't remember ever acting so uppity to her folks. Still, she hadn't had a mother who was a pal to her, same as she'd been to the Kid. Ever since the Kid had developed sense, which had been at a surprisingly early age, they had done everything together—been on trips and parties just like sisters—that is, until last night. Only last night the Kid had lied to her; had said she was going to study with a girl friend and had come home at half past twelve, defiantly refusing to give any information.

After storming to no avail, Belle had lain silent and awake in one twin bed, with the Kid presumably asleep in the other. Relations had been strained at breakfast and were no better now.

She had been a good mother to the Kid, darned if she hadn't. True, she hadn't been so hot about the Kid at first, for the Kid had been rather in the nature of a surprise. It had happened back in 1916 when Bill Cameron said he was sailing the next week for England and was going to enlist. First, however, he told her he'd always been crazy about her and would she marry him? The war wasn't going to last long and it would be nice to think he had a wife at home waiting for him. Before Bill sailed they were secretly married. He never came back. A month after he left Belle discovered to her horror that the Kid was coming.

She went back to her job in the beauty parlor. By saving, she managed to buy a partnership in the business and later to buy out her partner.

Now there was so much on her mind—business, which was terrible; the Kid who was just at the age when she might do something crazy like marry a boy who had nothing to get married on; Dan Lahey who every so often renewed his offers of marriage. There were times when she thought seriously of marrying Dan. She genuinely liked him, missed him when he didn't come for his regular calls. He was a good scout, had a good business, could give her a good home. But there was the Kid. They had always been together like sisters. She might not like it.

It was fun to go places with the Kid's friends and to have them call her Belle. It made her feel young and she wanted to feel young always. So she and the Kid had gone to movies, dances and parties together—that is, until last night when the Kid had deserted her. If she only knew with whom the Kid had been! If it had been Johnny Connors she wouldn't mind. Johnny was a nice boy; twenty-two, good looking but not too much so, ambitious and actually in possession of a job. Yet she knew it wasn't Johnny for he hadn't been around for a long time. She was afraid the Kid didn't care very much about him.

"If you've got any appointments at one thirty you'd better step on it," said the Kid suddenly. "It's 'most that now. And I've got a class at two." The Kid was taking a business course after high school. She didn't want to go into the Parlors although she had a clever hand with the iron.

ON THE street they stood still: two strikingly self-possessed fashion plates—just alike except that one was a little shorter, more than a little slighter, a little softer, a little weaker. "Here's where we split up I guess," said Belle lamely. "See you at supper."

The Kid traced a semicircle with the toe of a tiny blue pump. Then she straightened her shoulders. Her lips drew themselves into a thin line.

"I've got a date for tonight," she said huskily. "I—I won't be home for supper."

"I see," said Belle dully.

"At six thirty," said the Kid.

"At six thirty," Belle repeated mechanically. "If you're going out tonight," she added casually, "you ought to do something about your hair. It looks like the devil. I noticed it when you were trying on hats. Why don't you come up and have a shampoo and a finger the last of the afternoon?"

The Kid looked up hesitantly.

"It don't look so bad," she said. "If I have time I'll wash it myself at home."

"No need of doing that," Belle spoke easily, "when you can come up to the shop and have it done in no time. Come just before five—say quarter to—and some one can take you on anyway."

"Maybe I'll come," the Kid said with a little gulp. "Maybe I will about five. I suppose you'll be seeing Dan tonight, won't you?" she added.

"Probably," answered Belle carelessly. "Well, I guess I'd better be moving along."

While Belle deftly attended to the glorification of a client, she found time to look at herself intently in the mirror. Yes, her hair was growing gray right at the temples. She would start at once to dye it. And she was gaining weight, too. One hundred and forty. That purple dress would split sure as fate. She had bought it only to show the Kid that she was right.

IT WAS nearly quarter past five when the Kid came in, bright-eyed and vivacious. Too vivacious. Belle could see she was nervous.

"All alone?" she exclaimed. "What's the idea? Where's all the help? Walk out on you?"

"A couple of cancellations came in," replied Belle smoothly, "so I let 'em go early. Come over here. I'll take you in this chair!"

The Kid sat down, crossed her legs and looked at herself with satisfaction in the mirror.

"It's too bad for you to do me, after being on your feet all afternoon," she demurred. "Why couldn't I do the shampooing myself?"

"It won't take me any time at all," said Belle briskly.

She touched her daughter's hair tenderly. Lovely hair the Kid had; soft and glossy with a suggestion of a peach tinge to it.

The Kid chatted sociably about the events of the afternoon. Not for many months had she talked so intimately and companionably. Belle answered briefly. Thoroughly she washed the small shapely head.

Belle had been thinking of Dan and wondering what on earth to do about him. He had told her he might drop in tonight. She had been giving him scalp treatments.

There, that was the last rinsing. Belle cranked the Kid's head up, rubbed it energetically with a towel, then turned on the dryer.

"This week's VANITY came today," she said. "Want to see it?"

"Sure," said the Kid. "Toss it over."

The Kid's head was bent over the magazine when Belle turned off the dryer and brushed and combed the golden hair. It came suddenly erect with a jerk and the magazine slipped to the floor, as something pressed tightly across her arms just above the elbows and held them firmly to the chair. It was the cord of a marcelling iron. Then before she had time to make an outcry a towel was across her mouth. Horror stricken she saw in the mirror her mother pulling forward the permanent machine and bringing the tray with its imposing equipment.

"You're going to have a permanent, not a finger," announced Belle grimly," and it's going to keep you here for a good long while. No dates tonight!"

How the Kid kicked! Her legs beat a tattoo against the chair and one of the blue pumps flew off. Belle seized another iron and tied the cord around her legs.

"I'm going to start winding," she warned as the Kid sputtered and choked and wriggled and twisted, "so you'd better keep still or it'll hurt like blazes."

With difficulty — for the Kid banged her head up and down on the head rest—she arranged a section of hair and commenced to wind. The Kid disregarded the warning and continued to thrash. Then a muffled "oo-ouch" came from beneath the towel and tears flooded the Kid's eyes and rolled down her cheeks.

The Kid sat quietly after that but she shook with sobs and her head dropped forward.

"You'll have to hold your head up," said Belle patiently.

Slowly the Kid's head came up. Her eyes were tragic. Her face was flushed and mottled.

"That's better," said Belle kindly and added a few moments later, "if you won't yell, I'll take that towel off."

The Kid's head bobbed. Belle removed the towel and the cords, as well. The Kid gave a little sigh and sat perfectly still.

THE door was locked. Belle had cancelled all appointments so she knew there would be no interruptions. Just before turning on the heat she went to her little private pantry in a clothes closet.

"Take this," she said tersely, returning and holding forth a glass of milk and a saucer of crackers. "A pear pecan salad and a chocolate frappé ain't much to have a permanent on."

"Thanks," muttered the Kid with lowered eyes as she accepted the offering.

The telephone rang.

"Good Lord," said Belle petulantly as she picked up the telephone. "Hello!" she called abruptly into it.

"So—here you are, Beautiful!" came a young man's voice; deep, exultant. "I'm hot on the trail. Are you aware it's 'most seven? Johnny Connors waits for no man and you're the only woman he waits for. What's the matter? Old lady holding you up? Hope she wasn't sore about last night. If she insists on coming tonight, honey, bring her along. I can stand it. Not that I don't like her, you know. I think she's a humdinger, honest I do; but I'd like to be alone with you. Tell her chaperones went out twenty years ago."

Belle held the receiver with tight fingers. Her mouth was agape. Johnny Connors thinking he was talking to the Kid—calling her an old lady—saying he could stand her!

"What's the matter?" pressed Johnny. "Can't you talk?"

"Come up — about eight," she answered quickly and clicked down the receiver.

When she went back to the Kid she looked as if she had swallowed something that hadn't tasted very good. That cocksure know-it-all young squirt of a Johnny Connors talking about her like that! Why, probably all of the Kid's friends talked in the same manner. They considered her as somebody to put up with, somebody horning in, somebody who ought to be at home. In spite of the fact that they called her Belle they evidently thought of her as the Kid's old lady. Old lady! She winced.

The Kid looked pitifully small, strung up by the hair. Her cheeks were streaked and there were shadows beneath her eyes.

"She hates me," thought Belle dolefully, "and I don't know as I blame her. Thinking I was a pal to her and sticking to her like glue so she couldn't have any fun. Barging in where I wasn't wanted. As a parent I sure have been a flop!"

With her mind in such a turmoil it was a wonder the Kid got any kind of permanent at all but at last it was finished even to the setting. "It'll look better by tomorrow," said Belle without enthusiasm.

SHE DIDN'T hear the Kid slip out of the chair and stand uncertainly beside it gripping the arm. She did hear, however, a low stifled "Mom!"—Mom! It was what the Kid had first called her years ago as a baby.

Belle and the Kid had gone to movies, to dances, to parties together.

"Mom!" said the Kid again her voice rising tearfully. "I want you to listen. I was with Johnny Connors last night and we went for a ride, only it was a longer ride than we thought it was going to be because Johnny got on the wrong road. And I had a date with him tonight. We were going to have supper and go to the movies. But I won't go again unless you go too."

"Me go too," she scoffed, rather roughly rumpling the gorgeous new permanent. "An old lady like me! What do you think I want to tag around with a couple of youngsters for! Johnny's coming later on—he telephoned—and you skip along with him. You go with Johnny or anybody else and have fun; lots of fun. Just tell me about it that's all."

"Sure I'll tell you," murmured the Kid happily. "Sure I'll tell you. Gee, but you've always been swell to me, Mom!"

"Would you like it," Belle asked hesitantly, "if I were to marry Dan?"

"Boy, that would be great!" the Kid exclaimed joyfully. "Then you wouldn't have to work any more if you didn't want to. You could just stroll down and boss once in a while and we could live in a house instead of a measly apartment and maybe Dan would let me have the crowd there sometimes. Do you suppose he would?"

"Of course he would," promised Belle. She now glowed with enthusiasm. It would be fun to have a house of her own; one of those seven room brick ones Dan had been coaxing her with and merely drop in at the Parlors to see how things were going. It would be fun to be Mrs. Lahey with a handsome marriageable daughter. Dan would like it too. He had always liked the Kid.

"By the way," she said as a sudden thought came to her. "You know that purple dress I got today? We could shorten it and take it in at the sides and you could wear it. It would look swell on you. It's too small for me."

"I don't want it. Send it back for credit. If it's too small it's probably marked wrong. You can't tell a blamed thing by those sizes."

There came a vigorous knocking at the door. Belle and the Kid looked at each other. Eight o'clock. It was Johnny Connors without a doubt.

Probe Death Of Woman Aiding In Defense Of Home

(International News Service)

SCOTCH PLAINS, N. J., Sept. 27.—County Prosecutor Abe J. David today assumed personal charge of the investigation into the death of Mrs. Sophie Crempa, fatally wounded when she sought to prevent deputy sheriffs from entering her home.

She died at the side of her husband, John, with whom she previously had repelled several similar attempts to seize him for contempt of court, outgrowth of Crempa's one-man fight against the Public Service Electric and Gas Company. Her husband wounded in the right leg and hand, is in a local hospital.

Although the deputies claimed they opened fire only after the Crempas had blasted away, police found no weapons on the premises.

Wanted $100,000

Citation of Crempa for court contempt climaxed an eight-year altercation with the utility concern which had sought to string a high-tension line above his property. Finally, the power company obtained a court order awarding Crempa $800 for the right of way, an offer he turned down with a demand for $100,000.

The line went up, however, and Crempa went to jail for six months for obstructing its erection. On liberation, he promptly tossed a live wire over the utility line, causing an extensive short circuit. Again and again he used this method for blowing power station fuses, and the utility finally instituted injunction proceedings.

Crempa ignored a subpoena and his contempt citation on which the deputies were attempting to arrest him when his wife was slain, was ordered by chancery court.

BACK TO SETTLE ON OLD HOMELAND

(International News Service)

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Sept. 27.—Desire to settle in the home land of her grandfather brought Pearl Buck, noted American author, to Bucks county, the former Presbyterian missionary declared in an interview here.

With her publisher husband, Richard John Walsh, Miss Buck purchased a typically Pennsylvania German farmhouse, nearby a century old, near Doylestown, and remodeled it for her country home.

Her grandfather, she explained, was a native of this region, later moving to Virginia.

"I first saw a picture of this house when I visited a real estate agent in New York," Miss Buck said. "I liked it and decided it was the one I'd buy. I like the contrast of living in the city and in the country. I like the people here and this will be our permanent home."

Fishermen Puzzled By Antics Of Fish

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27—Thousands of catfish, carp and whitefish flashing in the Schuylkill river below Fairmount dam have caused veteran rivermen to scratch their heads in puzzlement one day after the same spot was clogged by equal numbers of "dead" fish.

The "mystery"—termed unprecedented in 50 years—began when the river literally was choked with schools of apparently lifeless denizens. Pedestrians stopped to watch and boys and men swooped in scores with improvised nets.

River police, fearing the fish had been killed by stream pollution and swept over the dam, warned that eating the captives might prove dangerous. But 24 hours later the river again was filled—this time with live fish.

Some thought it possible that heavy rains might have revived them during the night. Others declared the fish were newcomers from the Delaware river.

TRYING TO APE THE DIONNE "QUINTS"

(International News Service)

JEANNETTE, Pa., Sept. 27.—Corn quadruplets were discovered recently by Charles E. Mears who found four ears of corn growing from one base, in his garden here.

Three of the ears were full grown, the other has yet to show its tassell. Two other single ears also were growing on the same stalk.

EGOTIST

Tiny Palestine Making Strides In Industry

Towns Spring Up, Money Flows In, Future Is Bright

(Copyright, 1935, By International News Service)

JERUSALEM, Sept. 27.—Palestine, refuge for thousands of Jews from Nazi Germany and seat of determined efforts to establish a Jewish National home, has astounded observers during the past five years by its increasing prosperity.

The country, no larger than Wales or the State of New Jersey, with hock hills and wide, sweeping plains, lies on the western edge of the continent of Asia, bounded on the south by Egyptian and Saudi Arabian territory, on the east by Trans-Jordan, on the north by the French Mandated Territories of Syria and the Lebanon, and on the west by the Mediterranean.

The impregnable position of the government is reflected by the fact it holds a surplus of more than 4,000,000 pounds (narly $20,000,000) with prospects of adding another $5,000,000 this coming year.

The recent economic history of Palestine begins with the transfer from a military administration to the civil authority in 1920. Though 20 years before that time there had been an economic and spiritual revival in the country aided by the world Zionist movement, Palestine differed little from the care-free Arab villages, whose inhabitants today stand in wonder at the swift and rapid face of the country.

Previously there was no security, no method, no organized, world-wide groups pushing along under the leadership of men who have now risen to positions of importance in the national revival.

In 1920, Sir Herbert Samuel as first civil high commissioner, took charge of Palestine, and from that date the country began to progress.

To guide him Sir Herbert had historic documents, the Balfour declaration of 1917, and later in his administration the official mandate issued by the League of Nations in 1922. The first, a letter from Lord Balfour to Rothschild in Paris, stated "His Majesty's Government . . . look with favor on the establishment of a Jewish National Home in Palestine."

The second, the outcome of the Balfour note, gave the Mandate to Great Britain on condition that "the Mandatory shall be responsible for the placing of the country under such political, administrative and economic conditions as will secure the establishment of the Jewish National Home, as laid down in the preamble (of the Mandate), and the development of self-governing institutions, and also for safe-guarding the civil and religious rights of all the inhabitants of Palestine, irrespective of race and religion.

After Allenby's campaign the country came to a virtual economic standstill. The population was depleted, the land untilled, the orange groves ruined by lack of irrigation.

But Sir Herbert saw the possibilities of the country, and wrote in his first interim report:

"The prospects of Palestine are not limited on the economic side merely to a return to the standard attained before the war. It has the possibilities of a more prosperous future."

In these early years the lines of administration and economic development were laid down, acting as guilding posts to the country.

These included development of agriculture and citriculture, levying of import duties to encourage home industry, a system of graded taxation to cover government expenses and furtherance of a system of public security.

The government report for 1934 referring to economic affairs states:

"Sanguine though they (the government) were, the expectations of revenue in 1934 were more than realized. The revised estimated revenue for the financial period April 1, 1934, to March 31, 1935 is 5,350,000 pounds as compared with the original estimate of 3,482,655 pounds."

The report added:

"Today there are in Palestine almost 300,000 Jews. There is a constantly flowing stream of money and men, new industries are being established, citriculture is expanding, new settlements are springing up, towns are being enlarged by suburb after suburb."

Utilities Bill Test Is Started

Sharp Verbal Battle Marks Opening Round Of Holding Company Test

(International News Service)

BALTIMORE, Sept. 27.—A sharp verbal battle marked the opening today of the first legal fight to test the constitutionality of the Wheeler-Rayburn utilities holding company bill, enacted at the last session of congress.

Judge John J. Burns of Washington, counsel for the exchange and securities commission, petitioned Judge William C. Coleman, in United States district court, to postpone the action, brought by the American States Public Service corp., for thirty days. Judge Burns declared the S E C had not had sufficient time to prepare its case, explaining that many members of the S E C legal staff were on vacation and that ten days notice was insufficient.

John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924 who headed an array of counsel for utilities corporations, vigorously contested Burns' motion. He declared the holding company measure had been debated in congress for months and that the S E C had adequate time to prepare for the constitutional test.

Davis also resented what he termed charges of collusion made by Judge Burns.

Establish Motive In Poison Case

Charge Youth Poisoned Couple Who Raised Him To Get Their Savings

(International News Service)

LONG BEACH, Cal., Sept. 27—Greed for the life savings of the couple who had reared him from infancy was the motive which prompted Leroy Drake, 19 year old Sunday school worker, to poison his uncle and aunt, Henry and Nellie Steinhuer and then sing their bodies in the bay here.

This motive was definitely established today when Drake changed his confession after first saying he committed the double murder because he feared the anger of his relatives when they discovered he had been involved in an automobile theft.

In the new confession, the callousness of which shocked hardened detectives, Drake admitted he killed his relatives after he learned Steinhuer had $1,400 in a bank account and property worth $11,500.

Under the terms of wills drawn by the Steinhuers Drake was to have received the entire estate at their death.

Last Sunday, three days after he had poured a death-dealing draft of poison in the coffee pot at the home where his aunt and uncle had lavished on him the love usually accorded a son, Drake accompanied his young sweetheart Vula Hayden to church.

"He was very pious and didn't seem nervous or worried," Miss Haydle bars. Only because Sears leads the bicycle field can we give you den toid officers. She also said Drake had escorted her to a motion picture show only a few hours after he had sat calmly at the supper table last Thursday and watched his relatives die from the poison he had placed in their coffee.

WOULD PUT ROGERS PICTURE ON MONEY

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—In urging a national memorial for the late Will Rogers, a Pittsburgh woman has suggested the famous comedian be memorialized by placing his likeness on the country's silver and paper money.

Mrs. Mary Clark, in a letter to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, wrote:

"I miss his smiling face and little wise cracks every night in the paper. As a suggestion, don't you think a picture of Will Rogers on some of our silver and paper money would be a good memorial to such a genuine and true American?

"He would always be in our memory. Every person in all parts of the United States could see the money, but not all could see a memorial in some city."

OUGHT TO GET SOME OYSTERS IN STEWS

(International News Service)

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 27.—Approximately 7,000 workers began work as the oyster season opened in this state in September—the first fall month with the traditional "R." An estimated $10,000,000 is the yearly revenue from the state's oyster crop.

There are two sides to a family row: the selfish, greedy, unfair, inconsiderate side, and yours.

Boston Fishing Boat Seeks $17,000,000 Lost Treasure

(International News Service)

BOSTON.—A spirit of adventure and the lure of gold is leading a party of New Englanders on a search for sunken fortunes—about $17,000,000 in gold and silver—off the Delaware coast.

They will soon set sail from here aboard the famed Boston pilot ship Liberty with a veteran crew, try to salvage treasure on the sunken British privateer Braak, which went down off Cape Henlopen, Del., in 1798.

The object of this spectacular treasure search is cargo looted from five richly laden Spanish galleons, which the Braak had conquered at sea. Newspaper reports of the ship's sinking set the value of gold in the ship's strong room of $10,000,000 which would be worth seventeen millions at the present value of gold.

Captain "Clayt" Morrissey, veteran Gloucester fisherman who was skipper of the Henry Ford in the international fishermen's race, will be in command of the Liberty on the salvage trip which hopes to bring riches to 50 men who have staked their money in the venture with hopes of 100 to 1 returns.

New Buick Cars Are On Display

Handsome New Models Combine Multitude Of Improvements This Year

PUBLIC TO VIEW NEW CAR SATURDAY

With a multitude of improvements, the new 1936 Buick goes on display to the general public at the Lawrence Automobile Sales Company tomorrow. A pre-showing of the car has been arranged for today at the Lawrence Garage on South Mercer street.

Four entirely new models are being featured by Buick this year, with wheelbases ranging from 118 to 138 inches, embracing 14 new body styles. The particular features are additional riding comfort and greater ease in car control.

Special features which are embodied in Buick improvements are the Buick hydraulic brake, anolite pistons, increase in over-all length, increased power on hills, increased mileage on fuel and oil consumption, improved sealed valve-in-head motor and chassis, new automatic choke, improved valve mechanism, greater riding comfort, roadability, and ease of car control; change in the stabilizer, increased frame rigidity, improved new clutch, and new transmission.

The new anolite piston increases bearing life 150 per cent and also increases the life of the piston a similar amount.

In the 40 series, the overall length has been increased from 119 and three-quarter inches to 126 and three-quarter inches, this series showing the biggest departure over the 1935 model.

In the 60 series, there is an increase of gasoline mileage from 11.9 miles per gallon to 14.2 miles per gallon with a 120 horse-power motor. There is also a fifty per cent decrease in oil consumption.

The power on grades has been increased from 30 to 42 miles per hour on a 11.6 per cent grade at a starting speed of 10 miles per hour.

There is a new improved automatic choke, fully sealed, with improved carburetion, new improved valve mechanism which is quieter and of less weight.

There is improved knee action, more flexible front springs, an equal distribution of weight, providing greater riding comfort. The stabilizer has been moved from the rear to the front of the car, which improves steering on curves and corners and decreases tire wear, preventing skidding. The roadability is considerably better in the new car.

Schultz Loses First Round Of Fight In Court

(International News Service)

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 27.—Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer lost the first round of his renewed difficulties with Uncle Sam today when Federal Judge William Clark denied a motion to reduce his $75,000 bail to $25,000 pending hearings on a motion to extradite the erstwhile Bronx beer baron to New York to face income tax evasion charges.

Dutch already has been tried twice before federal court juries in New York on similar charges. In the first instance, the jury disagreed; in the second, Dutch was acquitted.

TEACHERS BANNED FROM DOUBLE TURN

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27. — Public school teachers who have been teaching evening as well as day classes must relinquish the former jobs to make room for unemployed instructors, the board of education ruled here.

Double-time jobs tended to lower the efficiency of teachers in addition to preventing others from obtaining employment, Mrs. William E. Lingelbach, a board member declared.

CONTRACT AWARDED

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—A contract from the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company for the construction of a steel carrier to be used at Avon, O., on Lake Erie, had been received today by the American Bridge company.

Old Automobile Brings Fancy Price

Twenty-Three Year Old Buick Sells For $360 At Auction Of Boyles Property

When the auction sale of the personal property of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Boyles took place yesterday afternoon, a record price was paid for the 23-year old Buick car, which has been a familiar sight on the streets of New Castle. It went to Mrs. Wyatt Campbell of this city and the price paid was $360. It was purchased by Mrs. Campbell for sentimental reasons.

The old model is in a splendid state of repair and with its fancy canopy overhead and brass fittings, was quite a showy car in its time. It still runs in good shape under its own power.

There were several bidders who sought to purchase the machine, but it finally went to Mrs. Campbell.

Because of the history of the car, it went at a much higher price than a newer model would have sold for.

End Sessions At Harrisburg

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 27.—Election of officers today was to bring to a close the Pennsylvania Millers' & Feed Dealers' association convention.

Secretary of Agriculture J. Hansell French told the delegates at the annual banquet session that Pennsylvania farmers raise the best soft red wheat in America but that garlic, smut and moth damage were responsible for the crop being in second-rate position from a cash standpoint. He urged the delegates to give him all suggestions they had for carrying on the fight to eradicate the diseases to the wheat crop.

FORMER POLICEMAN IS SCHOOL TEACHER

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—Students at Munhall high school received a shock at the recent opening of classes.

A familiar figure, once blue-coated in the regulation garb of a policeman, was before them as a teacher. John J. McCarthy had given up his post as a special policeman to teach general shop work in the vocational department of the school.

PET DUCK LIVES TO AGE OF 35 YEARS

(International News Service)

INDIANA, Pa., Sept. 27.—Probably the oldest duck on record, "Madame Brownie Duck," pet of a local family, passed away at the age of 35 years.

She had laid no eggs for the past 15 years but during her prime, she was known to have laid frequently two a day, one in the morning and one in the evening.

DEPRESSION'S ENDED

Smith: Things are going up, aren't they?

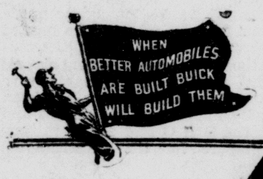

Brown: Yes. I hear $10 was paid for votes at the last election, when the old price was only $2.

OPERATING INCOME FOR PENNSY SHOWS HEALTHY INCREASE

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Net operating income of the Pennsylvania railroad increased during August and the first eight months of the current year over like periods of 1934, railroad officials reported today.

Net railway operating income for August was reported at $4,706,855, compared with $4,508,655 for the same period last year. Income during the first eight months of the year was $42,267,811, against $41,909,693 for the corresponding 1934 period.

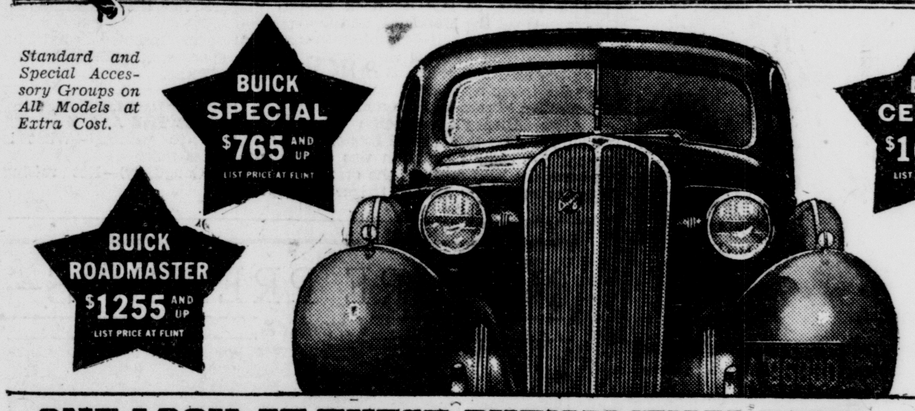

NAILING OUR FLAG TO THE MASTHEAD

—In the largest single self-contained motor car factory in the world, thousands of veteran Buick workmen have focused for two years on perfecting four new series of phenomenal automobiles, and now they offer these to the public in full confidence that they dramatically verify the traditional Buick pledge: "When better automobiles are built, Buick will build them."

"BUICK'S THE BUY!"

TWO years ago Buick deliberately leveled its sights on 1936.

It coolly set its aim on bringing to market for that year a line of motor cars that would startle the world.

It purposed to do that, not by freak or superficial design, not by skimping quality to make a price, but by sheer merit as expressed in automobile beauty, value, ability.

It submits to you now the eminently satisfying results of that fruitful two years of concentrated endeavor.

Each is a feast to the eye schooled in mature modern styling, as you can see.

Each has under the smooth flowing planes and surfaces of its smart exterior, the solid, tough, durable, beautifully engineered chassis that underwrites Buick dependability.

And each offers you from the stepped-up power of its big thrifty valve-in-head eight-cylinder engine such safe, thrilling performance as you have never known.

These cars are big cars every one — built to almost lavish dimensions of body room and head clearance — yet they handle with the fingertip lightness of small cars.

They are literally breath-taking in power and speed and take-off, yet under their new tiptoe hydraulics and easy-steering knee-action they are almost as manageable as a telephone.

They are thewed and sinewed by that quality which springs from Buick's third of a century of manufacturing experience, advantaged by $14,500,000 worth of new tools, dies and factory re-equipment devised for these cars alone.

These things are so true and so obvious that everywhere you will soon hear the motor-wise saying, "BUICK'S THE BUY!"

On Court House Hill

Joseph W. Hahn, Democratic candidate for city treasurer, and R. B. Morrow, Republican candidate for constable of the fourth ward, have filed their expense accounts showing that less than fifty dollars was expended on their campaigns.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Taylor reports that there are now sixteen prisoners in the county jail, of whom two are women. Some additions to the jail population will follow sentence court today, as some of those who had been convicted were out on bail.

Another large crowd was present yesterday at the sale of the David C. Boyles household effects, which was started on Wednesday morning. As the furnishings are being sold piece by piece it takes considerable time.

Testimony was taken by viewers yesterday to determine the amount of damage sustained by the Badger property on the Youngstown road as a result of a change of grade and widening of the cartway. Mr. Badger claims that about eight feet were taken from the front of his property and that the grade raised so that his cellar does not drain.

Twenty-two Republicans and fifteen Democrats were registered at the registration bureau yesterday, the third day for registration. According to estimates made by Registration Clerk, Thomas Edmunds, there are still over five hundred voters in the second ward who have not registered. This is much greater than the number not registered in other wards. Those who have failed to take advantage of the opportunity to register still have until October 5 to qualify to vote at the November elction.

While the state legislature is making laws there are many who believe that a law should be passed giving aldermen and justices greater latitude in the disposition of cases that come before them. It is generally agreed that a large percentage of criminal cases that reach the courts are of such a trival nature that it is an imposition on taxpayers to take up the time of the court trying them, especially as they could just as well be settled before an alderman or justice. Under the present laws the minor magistrate can do nothing but send the cases to court.

Farmers who are interested in the new milk control order are waiting patiently for the order to go into effect. According to word from Harrisburg the hearings called when the new order's effective date September 1 was announced were delayed and are still in progress. They are said to be moving slowly. After the evidence is all taken the board will have plenty of work thumbing through the mass of testimony that has been taken.

Lawrence county seems to be getting along as well as others in the matter of making the official count of the recent primary. More than a week after the balloting, only two counties in the state had turned in the official count to state headquarters. It is claimed that it will likely be a month before all the figures are in. While the results throughout the state are known, there will be no official figures until all of the counties have reported and the totals are made up.

Only two more days remain during which marriage licenses can be obtained here without a wait of three days from the time the application is taken until the license is granted. The Lawrence county business from neighboring states is expected to slump at once, as it is hardly likely that any licenses will be granted except to home grown couples, and it is certain that even some of them will go outside the state rather than submit to the new Pennsylvania statute. Pretty soon the long haired and sour-faced sponsors, who bamfoozled the legislators into passing the act, will be asking for one regulating courtship. They will want to tell a young man when he can go to see his girl, how tight he can squeeze her, how often he may kiss her, and just how long his wooing ought to last before he leads her to the marriage license bureau to undergo the ignominy of a three day wait. Personal liberty will soon be as scarce around this neck-o-the-woods as it is over in the foreign countries where dictators regulate everything from a baby's diaper to an old man's pipe.

Says Smoke Is Biggest Menace Of Fire Fighter

ACIDS CAPABLE OF CAUSING DEATH

Those big spectacular blazes, with fire shooting through window and roof, are not the kind of fires which endanger the lives of firefighters, as much as puny little blazes in clothes closets and cellars, Fire Chief H. Clare Stockman stated today, in recounting some of his own experiences and passing on his store of information gained from a study of the fire fighting business.

The big fires which drive the firemen to the outside are not as dangerous as the ones which they must get into closed places where the smoke is dense, for here all kinds of menaces are to be found as a result of burning chemical compounds.

Fumes Are Deadly

Fires in manufacturing plants, department, hardware and drug stores, even though small in character, may be packed with dynamite for the firemen. The smoke from these small fires may contain nitrous fumes so deadly that a solution of .003 per cent in a closed space would result in almost instant death.

Monoxide gas, which causes a big toll of death each year in this country, is present at almost every fire. It is odorless and colorless, and hence hard to detect. A solution of 2 per cent in a closed space will kill a person in a minute, experts assert.

Lethal vapors are also given off in gasoline and oil fires, in the sulphur fumes of burning rubber, nitric, hydrochloric, sulphuric and hydrofluoric acids; sulphur dioxide gas and ammonia fumes from refrigerating plants, and in burning paint, particularly the quick drying kind.

Pyroxiline fumes, caused by burning such materials as moving picture films, X-ray films, toys and toilet articles in department and five and ten cent stores, and the heels of fancy slippers in shoe stores are a deadly menace. These fumes are the most deadly encountered at fires. Even .001 per cent in the solution of air you breathe will cause death in from three to eight hours. It was such fumes as these which killed 125 people at the Cleveland Clinic only a few years ago. Sixteen of these were firemen.

Clothing Fires Bad

Dangerous as the fumes from nitrous compounds are, the hydrocyanic acid gas, used in executions in several states, or hydrogen sulphide gas, puts them and the dreaded monoxide gas in the background. One lung full of either causes instant death.

These latter can be found in fires among silks and woolens, in your clothes press, bed room, cellar, or attic. Woolens are more apt to smolder than to burn freely, and hence cause greater danger.

It is plain, he relates, that a smoke eater does not have to be inside a paint factory, film vault, or chemical laboratory to encounter trouble. A typical dwelling house fire can be a mean proposition, as fires are fought differently today than they used to be, today's plan of action calling for the fire fighter to get in on top of the blaze and tear it apart, fighting it hand to hand.

Carbon monoxide, as stated before, is to be found in every fire, and this often accounts for the firemen or others who come in contact with smoke suffering headaches for hours afterwards.

Chief Stockman's advice to all, if they have a fire, is to get everyone out into the open air as quickly as possible and to stay out. Thousands of lives have been lost because people have gone back into burning buildings for some article of no consequence, and have been overcome by the gases in the smoke, and have died as a result.

Dr. James Gray, Of Chicago, Dies

Dr. James M. Gray, who was associated closely with D. L. Moody many years ago, and who became successor to Dr. R. A. Torrey as dean of Moody Bible Institute, later becoming its president, has died, local friends learn.

Dr. Gray was a minister of the Reformed Episcopal church. He had served as editor of the Moody Monthly. A year ago he resigned as president of the institute and was elected president-emeritus.

It was Dr. Gray who paid for Rev. William Hammond's passport to South America and guaranteed $500 for his support in the first year of his missionary work. Rev. Hammond sails from New York Saturday morning.

MRS. A. L. BOEGEHOLD, DETROIT, MICH., SPEAKING

"I've tried those big boxes of cheap soap-chips. The big boxes mean nothing. It takes such a lot of that kind of soap to make suds. And the suds were miserable! Thin and watery . . . hard to rinse! Our clothes had to be rubbed, rubbed, rubbed—practically worn out in the tub! Even then they just wouldn't look clean . . . or smell fresh. And they faded. It didn't pay. I went right back to Chipso.

"My towels, sheets and table linens last for years, too. They look really white . . . smell fresh as spring sunshine. And Chipso works fast . . . saves hard rubbing! The suds are so rich they soak dirt loose."

Test Chipso for dishes . . . Money-Back Guarantee

Find out for yourself, quickly, how SUDSY Chipso is . . . how QUICK-WORKING . . . and how SAFE! Use Chipso—and no other soap—for two weeks for all your dish-washing and other housework. See how far a package of Chipso goes. See how much time you save. And if your HANDS aren't SMOOTHER and nicer after this two-weeks' test, take your Chipso box to your dealer and get your money back! We make you this offer because we know Chipso is fine, rich; SAFE soap. Think what Chipso safety means to your clothes!

MY NEW YORK

By JAS. ASWELL

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Paragraphs in Asphalt: Among the sports and butter-and-eggers who tossed greenbacks around New York while in town to see the Baer-Louis whoopsy-doopsy, a very strange attitude toward the engagement seemed to prevail.

As far as I could make out the overwhelming sentiment in favor of Louis stemmed from the popular conviction that Joe read the Bible regularly and led a clean life. Which is as if the patrons of the Monte Carlo casino all hoped that the croupier with the pink beard would win for the house because it was well known that he was good to his mother.

Is it possible that the producer of the revue to be called "New Faces" is attempting a broad jest in casting Miss Gypsy Rose Lee prominently among the hitherto obscure people of talent to be on view therein? Miss Lee is, as you may but shouldn't know, one of burlesk's premiere tossers of torsos.

With the aid of "New Faces" her map will receive the celebration which for delicacy of line and loveliness it deserves. Up to now few have noticed.

New York will probably get a world's fair for 1939. The grounds have been picked and there will be increasing difficulty finding parking space thereabout from now on. But one rather sentimental and portentious thought keeps upping: the fan dancers of the 1939 circus are somewhere around town even now, lasses of 13 or 14, attending high school and tying ribbons on their cute pigtails. If their mothers only knew!

Still, such speculation evokes a contrasting memory. A couple of years back, in one of the sizzlier spots, a damsel from a big revue chorus was waving a swizzle stick and screeching her joy in wine and song. A nice, middle-aged lady, no doubt slumming, dared to approach the girl and cluck disapprovingly.

"What would your mother say if she could see you now!"

The whopping cutie touched the shoulder of a hennaed lady sitting at her side.

"This is mom! You two should meet, because I can't seem to do anything with her any more!"

For every young girl who is lured by the meretricious glamor of footlights to become a chorine, forsaking family and protective home environment, there are a dozen who turn over their pay checks every week to shrewd and ambitious maternal duennas.

Rat-tat-tattle: Margo, who was plucked from a dancing team on a hotel roof to trip a measure in a Hecht-McArthur movie, has been plumped into a serious dramatic role in the play, "Winterset"—because of her dancing! . . . 5,000 girls showed up when Billy Rose asked for a few usherettes . . . 267 persons pick up a telephone every second in Manhattan . . .

Sunday shows are okay now by the city fathers, but John Golden, the first to offer a legitimate attraction, discovered that paying stage hands and actors double ran up his costs so that he lost money even with a full house . . . Bert Glennon, ace Hollywood cameraman, feels so strongly against having his picture taken that he will detour on foot for miles around the imagined ambush of a photographer . . . The phoney Baer-Louis advertising tickets sent out by an automobile concern were such ringers for the genuine pasteboards—although plainly inscribed "Fireseat Seat"—that several hundred proud bearers presented themselves at the Yankee Stadium the other night for the cruelest disillusionment of all.

Thirteen Colleges Want To Debate

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 27.—Thirteen colleges in all have made application to enter Westminster's annual debate tournament to be held during the winter semester. New applicants include Bethany college, Western Reserve and Juniata.

Tournaments during the past two years have included Grove City, Waynesburg, Pennsylvania State, Baldwin-Wallace, St. Francis, Geneva, Allegheny, Slippery Rock, Pittsburgh and Westminster. Last year Pittsburgh and St. Francis tied for first place; the preceding year's victory was taken by Westminster.

The subject for this year's debate will be selected next week at the Harrisburg conference of the Pennsylvania Debating association, which will select three subjects, one of which will be a Pennsylvania question.

IRONY OF FATE

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Sept. 27.—In the wreckage of an automobile in which five were injured, the only portion of the windshield which was not smashed out of its frame bore a label with the words, "I will drive safely."

Church Proud Of Its Young People

St. Michael's Slovak Church Cites Two Members Who Merit Distinction

In the souvenir program which has been published for the 25th Silver Jubilee for St. Michael's Slovak church, there are two pictures, one a young man and one a young woman who have distinguished themselves.

The picture of the young man is that of Dr. Joseph T. Kolibash, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kolibash of 115 West Miller street, New Castle who has the distinction of being the first physician to be turned out of St. Michael's. He was graduated from New Castle High school in 1928, then attended Villanova and took his medical course in Georgetown University. He was the youngest graduate from Georgetown Medical school in 1935. At present he is interning in St. Joseph's hospital in Baltimore, Md.

The young woman is Miss Anna Horvath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Horvath, who is the first trained nurse from St. Michael's parish, also the first state registered nurse from the New Castle Hospital.

Miss Horvath entered training in the New Castle Hospital in January 1, 1920 and graduated October 12, 1923. She was registered with the State Board on July 18, 1923.

The jubilee anniversary of St. Michael's will come to a close on Sunday with a solemn high mass in the morning and a banquet in St. Michael's Slovak hall in the evening.

Dinner At Church Is Great Success

Congregation Of Local Presbyterian Church Enjoys Dinner Event

The congregation of the Mahoning Presbyterian church met on Wednesday evening at the church for a tureen dinner.

At 6:30 o'clock they adjourned to the dining room where dinner proceeded in a leisurely fashion. Beautiful bouquets of fall flowers centered the long table and made an attractive setting for the dinner.

At the close of the dinner, E. C. Hulbert introduced to the congregation a system of self-rating questions, sent by the presbytery, which will be used by them during this year.

The regular prayer service followed, led by their pastor, Rev. D. C. Schnebly.

The committee in charge of the arrangements included Mrs. Clarence Allen, Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mrs. F. W. Hamilton, Mrs. Herman Alexander, Mrs. Manly Broadus and Mrs. Gilbert Scheidemantle.

Klans Ex-Dragon Still Hopes Jail Doors Will Open

D. C. Stevenson, Serving Life Term, Starts New Move For Release

(International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 27.—D. C. Stephenson, who once was the chief sales manager of the Ku Klux Klan in the nation, remains behind prison bars, despite the decadence of the Klan and the death of prohibition which it sponsored.

Stephenson, according to court records, is serving a life sentence in the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, of Indianapolis, former Butler University co-ed, but he is considered by many persons as the chief political prisoner of the Hoosier state.

Through Klan activities, Stephenson rose to great political power in Indiana 'way back in 1925. He helped immeasureably in the election of Ed Jackson as Republican governor and favored Arthur R. Robinson, whom Jackson appointed as United States senator and who subsequently was elected twice to that office, only to fall before the Democrats last year.

Stephenson was sentenced in 1925, although evidence in his trial revealed that Miss Oberholtzer had taken bichloride of mercury poison in Hammond, Ind. The state contended that the Klan chieftain had kidnaped the young woman, had bitten her and had denied her medical assistance after she had taken the poison.

After Stephenson had remained in prison for several years, he smuggled out charges involving a score of leading politicians. The result was that more than a dozen persons, including Governor Jackson, were indicted on political corruption allegations. Mayor John Duvall, of Indianapolis, was convicted, but Jackson was released after he had pleaded the statute of limitations.

Stephenson's legal efforts to obtain reconsideration of his case were delayed constantly by G. O. P. politicians, and when the Democrats obtained control he had little better success.

The vote of a Democrat judge of the state supreme court prevented him from obtaining a new trial in 1932, when the court split three to two against him.

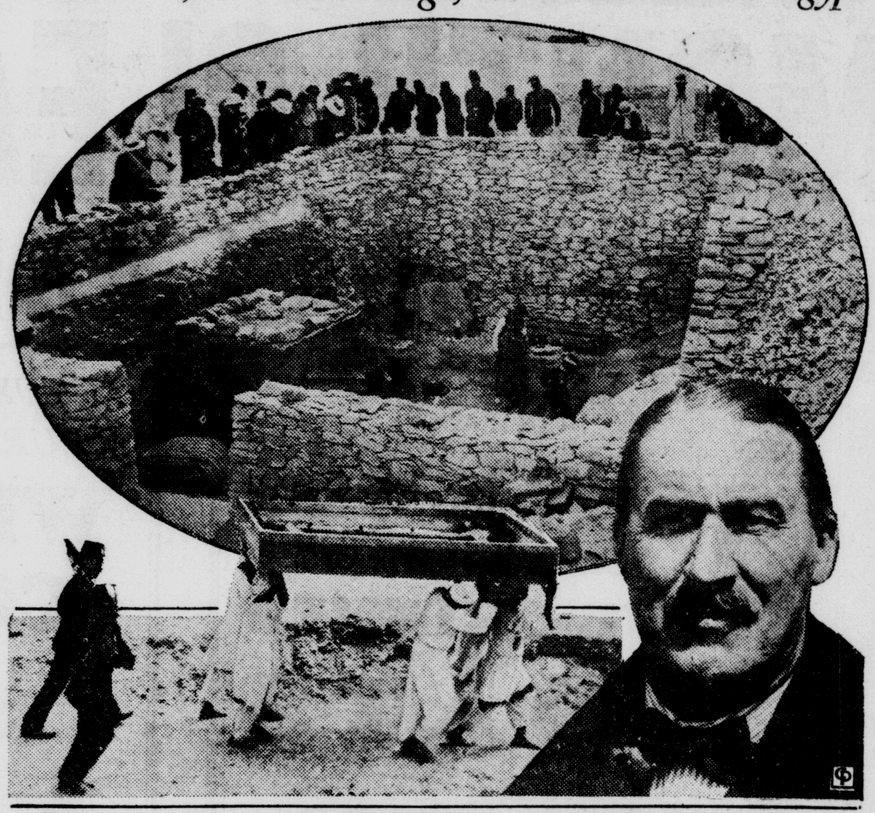

PESSIMISTIC

"So you are building a new house, eh? How are you getting along with it?"

"Fine. I've got the roof and the mortgage on it, and I expect to have the furnace and the sheriff in before fall."

OUR YESTERDAYS

A LONG SEARCH for an object that had been buried 3,200 years before was rewarded back in 1923 when two Egyptologists located the tomb of King Tutankhamen, ruler of ancient Egypt before the world ever heard of Rome, in the Valley of the Kings at Luxor, Egypt. The amazing discovery, which provided column after column of newspaper and magazine material, and made the name of King Tut a household by-word all over the globe, was made by Lord Carnavon and Howard Carter. The latter, a former artist who had turned to archaeological expeditions for his health, had been searching for the hidden tomb of the ancient ruler since 1907, and was about to abandon the venture when the long-sought tomb was located. The tomb netted its discoverers hundreds of thousands of dollars in treasure, for King Tut, who died at about the age of 18, had been buried in a coffin of solid gold and covered by a gold mask into which precious gems had been worked. It was hailed as one of the greatest archaeological discoveries of all time, revealing much of the life and modes of King Tut's time.

ESTATE WAITS 44 YEARS FOR DIVISION

(International News Service)

PUEBLO, Colo.—The estate of George M. Chilcott, one time U. S. senator, who came to Pueblo from Nebraska by ox team in 1863, is finally to be settled in October—44 years after his death.

Chilcott's will provided that none of his estate within Pueblo be sold while any of his children lived. His last son, M. Scott Chilcott, died in August.

Once valued at approximately $1,000,000 the estate has dwindled to an estimated $35,000. There are five heirs all of them grandchildren.

Andy Jackson's Cow Trough Is Spirited Away

Landmark In White House Stables Since Pioneer Days

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON—What has become of Andrew Jackson's cow trough?

Since 1829, it stood in the old White House stables, a great marble scoop of tremendous weight and solidity. Twice daily, Bossy—her name is lost to history—was led from her grazing ground, back of the executive mansion, and milked, into the white marble trough.

Pasteur was not yet born. And the insidious germ was still incognito. "Harmless as a fly" was a favorite figure of speech, and no one worried when these pests fell into the milk. The open marble trough was the most modern and elegant of milk receptacles.

Apparently Old Hickory was germ-resistant, and so were the glamorous Peggy Eaton and the wives of Jackson's cabinet officers, who came to the White House and partook of creams and custards before they decided to cut out executive mansion hospitality in their mass-snubbing of the lovely Peggy, wife of the secretary of war.

Presidents came and presidents went, but the old trough, safe in its unwieldiness, promised to go on forever.

At her last press conference, Mrs. Roosevelt, in telling the women newshawks about the changes to be made in installing the new kitchen ranges and doing over the White House kitchen, told them not a plank with any historical interest would be moved and concluded with "not even Andrew Jackson's cow trough."

But Mrs. Roosevelt reckoned without the craze for historic souvenirs, even among the gifted who specialize in architecture. And the trough has gone, as indubitably as if Aladdin had waved his wand and wished it away to distant scenes.

Will it require a senatorial or congressional investigation to bring it back? Will it furnish new material to a whole school of mystery writers? Will women's clubs make it the subject of patriotic investigation? Back to the White House Andrew Jackson's cow trough will come, as soon as Mrs. Roosevelt returns to give the place a once-over, it is being forecast.

MARRIES GIRL WHO HAD HIM ARRESTED

(International News Service)

NEW YORK.—She accused him of breaking her jaw and so they were married.

This, believe it or not, is the ending of the squabble between Miss Helen Grant, 30, a nurse, and Dr. Walter T. Glaser, 29, a physician.

Only a few days ago Miss Grant charged he struck her and broke her jaw when she called on him to ask the return of engagement presents she had given him. They had been engaged six years but broke the troth last month.

The case was to come up before a Magistrate the day they were wed.

WILL RUN SPECIAL TRAIN

The New Castle football team goes to Johnstown on Saturday, October 5. The school hopes that a large delegation of students will go to this game as it is one of the most important games of the season and the team needs encouragement. The Pennsylvania Railroad is planning to run a special train if 300 tickets are sold. The train will leave New Castle at 8:45 A. M. and arrive at 11:45 in Johnstown. Returning, it will leave Johnstown at 6:45 P. M. and arrive in New Castle at 9:45.

GYM CLASSES TO BEGIN

Gymnasium classes for girls started Wednesday of this week, under the direction of Miss Sarah McGoun. The girls who do not take this subject have enrolled in the physiology class.

COMMERCIAL CHAPEL

Today the commercial classes of the Senior high school heard a most interesting lecture on "The Proper Way to Send a Telegram". This was delivered by a representative of the Western Union Telegraph Co. He explained to the students the correct method to use in filling out, checking over and sending a telegram. The lecture was therefore instructive and beneficial as well as interesting.

ARITHMETIC TEST GIVEN.

Thursday morning in the third period a test in arithmetic was given to every student in the school. The examination was of a general nature and was given to determine approximately the amount of knowledge about this subject known by the students.

The results of this test will be announced later.

GIVEN GAME INVITATION

From the State Teachers' college at Slippery Rock comes the invitation to the senior class and the faculty of the high school to attend their football game with Westminister tomorrow at Slippery Rock.

Fifty complimentary tickets were sent to Principal Orth to distribute among those who are planning to go. Those wishing to go applied to his office and in a very short time all tickets were gone. Nearly all of New Castle's team will be in attendance at this game.

STADIUM SEATS RE-NUMBERED

Members of the drafting department have been at Taggart stadium all of this week re-numbering the seats and re-lettering the rows.

Those who have been doing the work are William Graham, Don Rae, Norman Braatz, Jack Heywood, James McCarthy, Alex Parou and Glenn Wallace.

These boys works under the supervision of their instructor, George Thomas. This is the second project this year for this department. Last week the boys were busily engaged renumbering the switches in the switch boxes about the halls.

LIBRARY HELPERS NAMED

A corps of library helpers has been organized to help the librarian during the various periods of the school day. At present the squad has 25 members, chosen from various classes. These assistant librarians deliver library slips to study halls, charge and discharge books and magazines, make overdue and reserve notices, shelve books, look up magazines for reference work, file cards, and learn library routine in general. They also are responsible for many other duties which help the efficient functioning of the library. This corps is very ably trained by Miss Helen Westlake the school librarian.

FIRE DRILLS ARE HELD

In preparation for any emergency, the school has had two fire drills during this past week. The first was on Monday morning and the second was held on Wednesday afternoon.

ADD NEW INSTRUMENTS

Professor Joe Replogle announces that the orchestra has added two new instruments to their list for this year. One viola and one string bass are the two new ones.

The money, one hundred dollars, with which these instruments were purchased was appropriated by the Mikado Club and with the condition that it be spent in the purchase of instruments.

The Mikado club was an opera club which was in existence in 1935 and had about one hundred members. This club, however, is no longer in existance and the one hundred dollars which was given to the orchestra fund was the balance which was left in the treasury. The director of this club was Parke V. Hogan, one time organist at the First M. E. church. Mr. Hogan is now a resident of New York City.

Y. M. C. A. EXTENDS WELCOME

Principal F. L. Orth is in receipt of a letter from the Young Men's Christian Association of Johnstown, Pennsylvania. This is a letter of invitation to the team and the student body to use the Y. M. C. A. as their headquarters at the time of the Johnstown-New Castle football game which will be played next Saturday.

They offer their complete cooperation on this day to New Castle visitors and those in attendance will undoubtedly take advantage of this invitation.

SQUAD LEADERS ORGANIZE

On Tuesday morning of this week the leaders for the girl's gym squads held a meeting in the gym for the purpose of organization. This was under the direction of the athletic instructor, Miss Sarah McGoun. During the course of the meeting she made the appointments for the various periods during the day.

Another important article discussed during this meeting was the method which will be employed this year in the marking and grading of the girls during their gym exercises. This explained fully by Miss McGoun in order that no errors may be encountered during the semester.

Panoramic view shows some of the crowd of 150,000 that attended midnight mass in Cleveland stadium, part of the program of the seventh National Eucharistic congress. More than 25,000 were turned away as the huge amphitheater on the lakefront was filled to overflowing. During the ceremony the stadium lights were turned off, and thousands of candles held by worshipers shed a soft brilliance over the impressive Catholic spectacle. The altar is at the extreme left.

The only red, white and blue marked buoy in the world is in Baltimore Harbor, just off Fort McHenry. It marks the spot where Francis Scott Key wrote the words to the Star Spangled Banner.

The heavy cruiser, U. S. S. Houston, on which President Roosevelt travelled to Hawaii last summer, is now in San Diego Harbor and will remain until after the presidents visit. She is 150 feet long with a speed of 52 nautical miles per hour, and has a cruising range of about 600 nautical miles. In point of service she is the second oldest airship in service in the United States Navy, and is but one year younger than the Graf Zeppelin, which airship is the oldest operating airship in the world.

Nine Tunnel Way Out Of Prison

(International News Service)

SOFIA—Nine men escaped from a prison at Plovdiv, Bulgaria, by a tunnel which took them over a month to dig.

The men had been arrested for Communist activities.

After they had been missed, a pit six feet deep was found beneath the bed of one of the men. At the bottom of this a tunnel 20 feet long had been burrowed out.

For their tunnelling the men had used a broken spade and the end of a plank, disposing of the soil by putting it below the prison floor. The work had been carried out by a glimmer of light from a little sunflower oil in an old tin lid.

AROUND CITY HALL

Police chronology for 24 hours ending at 3:30 p. m. September 26, 10 arrests on charges as follows: Drunkenness 8 and drunkenness and disorderly conduct 2.

Mayor Charles B. Mayne in police court Thursday told several defendants in no uncertain language that should they not cease the practice of soliciting money from pedestrians they can expect to wind up either in the Lawrence county jail or the Allegheny county workhouse. There is nothing more disgusting, people will agree, than some person who has filled up on booze who becomes abusive when a pedestrian refuses to hand him a nickel or a dime. Some of them have gone so far as to shout through doorways and presentation of a 30 day sentence yesterday to a defendant does not augur well for panhandlers arrested in the future.

Solicitor Robert White stated today that within the near future plans will probably be made for the exchange of Improvement certificates to the tune of $60,000, for bonds which will pay 4 1-4 per cent.

Each of the cruiser cars in the police department, excepting the auto used by detectives and the patrol, travel approximately 100 miles each 24 hours. The drivers are not allowed to park. The cars must be kept in operation, except when necessary to stop for an investigation.

Contagion has been held at almost a complete standstill during the past several months...Corn and canning season has caused the garbage department to keep busy every minute of its allotted working hours. ...Vandalism in the city parks and at drinking fountains has taken a big drop recently.

Best Farm Year, Prices Going Up

GENERAL CROP CONDITIONS GOOD

HARRISBURG, Sept. 27—Secretary of Agriculture J. Hansell French said today in a review of agricultural prospects that the farming situation in Pennsylvania has improved remarkably during the past two years and the outlook is now the best since 1929.

"Cash income from farm production this year is averaging eighteen per cent above last year and almost fifty per cent higher than in 1932," he asserted. "It is believed that the total cash receipts this year will be at least eighty-two per cent of the 1925-1929 average, while in 1932 —the low point of the depression— the income was only fifty-eight per cent of that average. This means the cash returns from farm production for 1935 will likely be approximately $65,000,000 more than three years ago, or an increase of about $340 per farm.

Higher Prices

"This increase in income is due to higher prices received by farmers for many important products of the farm and the better-than average yields being harvested. When the first eight months of this year are compared with the corresponding period of 1933, prices paid by farmers for important commodities purchased for the farm and home have increased twenty-three per cent while the price received for milk has increased fifty-one per cent, corn fifty-nine per cent, oats fifty per cent, hay forty-four per cent, hogs 100 per cent, beef cattle sixty-five per cent, milk cows thirty per cent, chickens fifty-one per cent, eggs fifty-five per cent, and wool thirty-three per cent. The price of wheat in July and August this year was less than last year but it is still fifty per cent higher than in 1932. Potatoes and apples are the only important cash products of the farm which do not show such favorably price comparisons during the past two or three years.

"General crop conditions are favorable this year, taking the state as a whole, and excellent yields are resulting for most crops. The total production will be at least equal to the average of the past five years and in the most favored sections, reports indicate the best crop in many years.

"The prospects for both the dairy and poultry industries which together provide sixty per cent of the cash income for Pennsylvania farmers, are the most promising of the past few years.

Can Your Memory Recall the Days When Mae West Looked Like This?

Left, in vaudeville costume; right, as she appeared in 1911; inset, as she is today.

By M. C. CHENOWETH
Central Press Staff Writer

IF WE DIDN'T tell you, chances are you'd never guess in a month of blue moons who is posing in two of the pictures of the layout above. Oh, yes! You movie fans will recognize the one below—that's Mae West. But—so are the other two! Those two family album photos were taken of the glamorous screen star when her hair was dark, her figure—ah, er—slim, and she was doing skits in vaudeville. The one at right was snapped about 1911, but you'll have to ask her how long ago the one at left was taken. It was some time during those days when noted stars of the London music halls, such as Bessie Bonehill, Vesta Tilley and others, were making such a big hit in the United States. They introduced the idea of wearing masculine clothing, and, as you can see, Mae wasn't backward in those days, either.

The county committee as a whole will meet at three o'clock when the campaign will be under discussion.

ROBS PETER TO PAY PAUL

(International News Service)

LEWISBURG, Pa.,—Joseph Weller's efforts to square himself with the law landed him in jail. Weller, a 21-year-old farm youth living near here, admitted to Sheriff John Hackenberg he had stolen six bushels of wheat from the farm of Thomas Spangler in order to obtain money with which to pay a $7.50 traffic fine.

Ellwood City Boys Sought By Police

Two Ellwood City boys have been missing from their homes since September 4, according to a report received by the local department of police. They are Billy Bellora and Thomas Ruby.

Bellora's description: Age 15, heighth 5 feet 5 inches; weight, 132 pounds; complexion, light; hair, curly chestnut; eyes, blue. He wore a light shirt, blue lumber jacket and gold rim spectacles.

Ruby's description: Age 16; complexion, fair; hair, dark brown; eyes, blue; wears spectacles; trousers, light. He also wore a white shirt, white shoes, yellow polo shirt or a dark green jacket.

DEDHAM, Mass.— While there may be luck in numbers, as numerologists claim, it would be hard to convince residents of this town of it. ERA workers renumbered all the houses, but most citizens were satisfied with the old numbers and let them stay. So there's lots of confusion.

NEW CASTLE AND WARREN PLAY TONIGHT

Taggart Stadium Will Be Jammed As Schoolboys Battle In Grid Contest

New Castle-Warren Game Of 1934 May Be Repeated Here Tonight

Game Starts At 8 O'Clock, Both Teams In Best Of Condition

TAGGART Stadium, Sept. 27.—Tramp! tramp! tramp! The staccatto of muffled drums and the thundering of hundreds of pairs of feet will be audible here tonight as the time draws near for the New Castle - Warren High football battle. The kickoff is scheduled for 8 o'clock. The doors of the stadium will be opened at 7 o'clock. Warren, Ohio, fans will move, in huge strength, into New Castle for the game.

The atmosphere here reeks with pigskin today. Not in many years has a football game tended to work the fans into such fever heat. Not for many moons will New Castle see another crowd the size of the one that packs the Taggart stadium tonight.

Much Talked About

The game is the most talked of event in town tonight. Over the breakfast, dinner and supper tables the citizens have been discussing the Warren-New Castle game. This game has caught their fancy, like Joe Louis in Harlem after knocking Mister Baer for a few loops.

Not only in New Castle are the citizens having a "conipshun" fit over this coming grid contest, but also in Warren, Ohio, where the big march originates tonight. They will tell you over in Warren that Pierre Hill's boys are going over there and clean-up Lawrence County's favorite sons.

It may happen that the Pa Newcians will not want to be cleaned up. And any way you look at this contest the more you are inclined to believe that it is going to produce some plain and fancy footballing and we don't mean perhaps.

Remember 1934 Game

Warren will bring a team of veritable young giants to the city. Not the kind of giants of old, but the kind who wear grid togs. Not ferocious unless you plant a cleat on his anatomy, and then look-out. Warren will outweigh the New Castle boys 12 pounds to the man, as a team as a whole. The Warren backfield will have 12 pounds and the line will have 12 pounds, well, well, just a lot of twelves. The heaviest man on the Warren team is Jimmy Sauerbrun, who tips the scales around the 225 mark (a little under weight), and the lightest will be 160 pounds, in this class you will find Fulton, Totterdale, Hubbard, Fetchko, and H. Brogden.

Warren Heaviest

The heaviest man on the New Castle team will be Frank "Tarzan" Crisci whose weight-tipping says 190 pounds of bone and muscle. The lightest boy of course will be young Engsie, the 135 pound (featherweight) halfback, whose runs last week looked so good that he will start this week at halfback.

Young Mister Engs will be a marked man no doubt, those touchdown twins produced by Engs last week were enough to convince the Warren, Ohio scouts that the younger is not just a flash in the pan, but a coming star of the cleated greensward. Warren will offer for your approval Mister Fulton, and the young man is said to be a grid player of no mean ability, outside of running well, passing and kicking like anything, he is practically a drag on the backfield. Then there is H. Brogden and Bugzavich from the 1934 Warren team.

That 7 to 0 victory of the New Castles, led by Fleming, Raskowski and the Shellogg boys last year still lives in the memory of those who witnessed the game. Another such battle is looked for tonight. New Castle has defeated Braddock and Butler; and Warren has upset Erie Academy.

Worth Seeing

A football game worth seeing is the outlook. If you like your gridiron dish well seasoned with long runs, thrilling forward passes, and hard, fierce tackling then just lay aside the cross-word puzzles tonight or your knitting or what have you, and get out to Taggart Stadium where you will see the pulse of football of two towns laid bare.

The two schoolboy teams have finished their training for this important game and the young gridders are awaiting the last few whispered instruction before the coaches send them out to do battle. The eleventh hour has arrived. The game that has been talked about since last year is here. The game of games for New Castle, and you had better plan to sit in tonight on the biggest football spectacle of the year here.

Expect Big Crowd

The Warren fans will arrive by special train, bus, motor cars and probably many of the boys will "thumb-it" over. The Warren fans on the special train will parade up East Washington street headed by the New Castle High and Warren High bands. It will be a noisy joyous parade of carefree football fans on their way to have their appetites appeased.

Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner has made every possible arrangement of comfort for this game for the visitors. If the weatherman will just provide a nice clear night.

The Ethiopian-Italian embroglia, the Louis-Baer much talked over fight, and the Cubs and Cardinals series for the National league pennant have been side-tracked momentarily as the football fans pick up their blankets and steal away to Taggart Stadium where a big evening awaits them.

Additional Seats For Game Tonight

Gardner Arranges For 500 Additional Reserved Seats For Taggart Field

Indications point to a mammoth crowd tonight at the New Castle-Warren high school football game at Taggart stadium. So big in fact will be the crowd that Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner has ordered the installation of 500 additional reserved seats in front of the concrete stands.

There is almost a complete sell-out of tickets at the Sporting Goods store for this game. The additional reserved seat tickets have been placed on sale at the Sporting Goods store and will also be available at the field tonight.

There is a strong possibiltiy that the temporary reserved seats will be kept at the field for future games such as Martins Ferry, Chaney, Washington and Sharon.

SPORTS PULSE PENNSYLVANIA

By VIC JACOBS
International News Service Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—Pittsburgh's ambitious, harle-quinading mayor, William McNair, said he would enjoy being a football coach in writing for a Duquesne university publication. Wrote he: "There are a lot of cornermen in this city who would make good tackles and it would be a great thing for them to learn how to be rough like gentlemen." But maybe it's only a coup to carry his single tax into the football huddles.

Muhlenberg, whipped into shape in record time by its new coach, Ray McRobie, lifts the lid on its schedule under the mazdas at Allentown tonight against Baltimore. . . . That game bringing together Gene Edwards' Bearcats from St. Vincents and St. Thomas college at Scranton should be a corker. . . . The Bearcats are a western Pennsylvania "B" power but St. Thomas is tops when the going is rough and gives no quarter.

Chester high drew the call over Radnor as the new member of Section 1 in the Philadelphia Suburban Athletic Association when the organization met to draw up a new alignment of member teams. . . . Here's a tip to Brookville's future opponents—keep an eye on "Satan" Hilliard. . . . The fleet blond halfback threatens to repeat his work against Brockway when he sped to six of his team's eight touchdowns in the 51-7 rout.

Miscellanae . . . at Uniontown, the footballers warn they'll shirk unless outfitted in new moleskins. The races to be held at Montgomery county's fair grounds ten days hence are calculated to decide the eastern dirt track auto racing championship. . . . Boby Moody, Freeport negro, lasted only three rounds as one of Joe Louis' sparring partners.

Paul Macierello Scores Lone Touchdown For Franklins Against Bessemer

Ben Franklin Junior High school football team opened the 1935 season yesterday afternoon at Taggart Field by taking the measure of a big powerful Bessemer High reserve team 6 to 0, with Paul Macierello the big star of the battle scoring the touchdown in the fourth period on a forward pass, thrown by Ryan.

Ryan Good Passer

Both teams fought hard in the first two periods with no one coming close to the goal line. Bessemer worked the ball to the 10 yard line on one occasion but lost it on downs. Macierello raced from behind his own goal line on a fine play and ran the ball to midfield for one of the features of the game. The passing combination of Ryan to Macierello clicked nicely.

Franklin threatened in the third quarter with Ryan flipping a few successful passes to Noga, but the Bessemer defense tightened up and held the Gillaspiemen off.

Macierello Stars

The passing of Ryan was a big factor in the victory of the East Siders with Ryan passing to Noga good for a 10 yard gain early in the fourth period and then flipping another to Russos that put the ball on the Bessemer 15 yard line. At this point Ryan flipped another pass and it was taken by Paul Macierello and he raced over the goal line.

The work of Sowinski and Costello stood out quite brilliantly for the Franklins. Zornick and Anderson led the attack for the Bessemers. Shoup was the most consistent ground gainer.

Ben Franklin 6		Bessemer Res. 0
Russos	L E	Zornick

Score by periods:

Detroit Wants Schmeling And Joe Louis Bout

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Possibility of a Joe Louis-Max Schmeling heavyweight fight in Detroit loomed today with the announcement by Mike Jacobs, 20th Century club promoter, that certain interests in the motor city had approached him on the subject.

Jacobs said such a fight might draw as high as $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

Cubs' Kid Catcher

Jim O'Dea

Twenty-two-year-old James Kenneth O'Dea, who came to the Cubs in spring from Columbus, O., may get into the world series. O'Dea is from Lima, N. Y., and is understudying Gabby Hartnett, Cubs' regular.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Johnny Kilbane, former featherweight champion of the world, stopped off here yesterday afternoon enroute from the Baer-Louis fight in New York to Cleveland. Asked about the fight by the writer, the former champion said there was nothing much to it and as soon as Baer left his corner and began pawing around he knew Baer was licked.

As Johnny passed through East Washington street to visit Jimmie Dime at the latter's gymnasium, where there are several boys in training, he yelled hello to Phil Greer, Henry Dupuy and Jumbo Bullano. It was Bullano, so the report goes, who helped to train Young Zahniser for Kilbane's first fight here.

Talking in Chicago, Jimmy Braddock, world's heavyweight champion, said that Carnera, Levinsky and Baer were scared to death when they entered the ring to fight Joe Louis and declared that he believes he is the man to beat Louis. Braddock declared Max Schmeling will cause Louis a lot of trouble with his left hand if they meet.

Ollie Bigley of Butler and Boby Mayer of Beaver Falls are two of the drivers who have entered cars in the four races, one of which will be a 20-mile chase, tomorrow night at Junction park, New Brighton. The track has been illuminated and the events will get under way at 8 p. m. Deacon Litz will start the events.

Taffy Volo won the forty-sixth renewal of the Transylvania in the Grand Circuit meeting at Lexington yesterday. Despite a slow first heat, the race lowered the best previous record for a four-heat race, made by the Marchoness in 1932. The last heat in 2:02 is also the fastest fourth heat on record, displacing that of Marmaduke made in 1924. Bertha C. Hanover finished second.

Perry Del Vecchio, professional at the Greensburg county club, Greensburg, Pa., yesterday equalled his own course record of 62, nine under par. He was playing in a foursome. He missed a putt on the eighteenth narrowly kept him from bettering his record. He went out in 32 and returned in 30.

NOT SO GOOD THERE EITHER

"Maybe you're right. He is terribly careless with his sewing."

Titans Open Season At Slippery Rock On Saturday Afternoon

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Sept. 27—With hopes for a hard, fast field, Coach Gilbane will take 25 Titans to Slippery Rock Saturday prepared to open a passing and running game

The Westminster squad has escaped injuries in practice sessions, and in spite of a late and short training season, the team has been showing up in mid season form during the past few days.

Gilbane will start his eleven best men to test them for iron-men ability: however, plans to make substitutions freely.

The Titan band, 40 pieces, will accompany the team. Ten of the band membership this year will be girls. Ellwood Rushworth, Swissvale, will carry the baton as drum-major.

Cal Bolster, referee: Al Slack, umpire and David H. Behrhorst, Allegheny, head linesman. The game is called for 3:30.

Coach Gilbane expects to schedule a practice game for October 5 to fill in a short six game schedule. The following Saturday, October 12 is Hoecoming Day, when the Titans meet the Waynesburg Yellow Jackets.

Chicago Cubs Hope To Cinch National League Flag With Victory Today

"DIZY" DEAN READY TO HURL

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD
International News Service Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27.—With the patient in the throes of a lingering and apparently hopeless illness a park full of St. Louis Cardinals sympathizers are expected to sit in today at the "sudden death" doubleheader with Chicago's Cubs.

The patient's plight is a critical one. A relapse in either of today's two games or in either of the two other remaining contests means a sudden and complete demise for Cardinal hopes of repeating as National League champions. Even if the ailing Red Bird should recover sufficiently to take four straight from the robust Cubs, it still would be faced with the necessity of winning two out of three in the playoff series.

Dizzy To Pitch

Old Doc Dizzy Dean will be called on to pitch the first game of the double header in the hope of keeping the breath of life in Cardinal pennant hopes. Should he succeed, responsibility for keeping the patient alive would then rest on the shoulders of another member of the overworked Cardinal pitching staff, not definitely selected. It might be Dr. Paul Dean, younger brother of old Doc Dizzy, or it might be the venerable old Dr. "Wild" William Hallahan. Then again the two youthful "internes" rookies Mike Ryba, of Columbus, or Jim Winford, might be called in on the critical case.

First Voter—I think it was terribly mean when congress stopped sending us free seeds.

Second Voter—I think it was a waste for congress to send us free seeds. They ought to plant the seeds and send us the vegetables.

Knox College Will Try To Stave Off 28th Consecutive Defeat

(International News Service)

GALESBURG, Ill., Sept. 27. — Few colleges have "crucial" games for openers, but Knox has the crucialest of the crucial tomorrow.

Victory will leave Knox tied with Hobart college of Geneva, N. Y., for the dubious titular honors.

Chances for a Knox victory were dimmed today when head coach Pete Reynolds, a courageous being who applied for the job following the resignation of coach Lloyd Burdick at the close of last season, announced injuries would keep three regulars on the sidelines tomorrow.

Ask Courtesy For Warren Visitors

When the Warren, O., football team comes to New Castle this evening it will be accompanied by the high school band. The band will undoubtedly parade and friends of fair play in New Castle have asked the New Castle people be as courteous to them as the citizens of Warren, O., were in Warren a year ago to the New Castle team and band.

In the past two weeks some hoodlums on East Washington street have been throwing things at the high school band as it passed along the street. As could be expected they skulked in dark places and threw their missiles.

Tonight an extra effort will be made to see that this is not done. If it is done, charges will be preferred against those responsible.

Braddock Wants "Shot" At Louis

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. — Jimmy Braddock, the weather-beaten fist fighter who bounced from the relief roll to become heavyweight champion of the world, can "take" Joe Louis "any time, any place."

That's what Jimmy said today when he came to referee a wrestling match tonight.

With the right end position still in doubt, Coach Jock Sutherland held a final practice session this afternoon for the season opener with Waynesburg tomorrow.

TECH AT CLEVELAND

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27—Coach Howard Harpster tapered his Carnegie Scots off with a light signal drill this afternoon and then ordered them to bed early. The entire squad of 37 players will leave for Cleveland early tomorrow for the opening game of the season with Case.

TANNER-MOONEY STARS OF GAME

Shenango high school football team defeated George Washington junior high 27 to 6 at the Washington high field yesterday afternoon, the Phelpsmen scoring four touchdowns to one for the Washingtons. L. Tanner, Mooney and Dewberry were the stars of the game.

It was L. Tanner who scored in the first few minutes of play on a line plunge to give the Shenangos a lead, and the first period ended 7 to 0, with Shenango out in front. The Washingtons scored in the second period when Dewberry intercepted a Shenango pass and raced 75 yards through a broken field for the lone touchdown for the North Siders. The end of the first half found the Carrollmen trailing 7 to 6.

L. Tanner Stars.

Shenango tallied two more touchdowns in the third period with the East New Castle boys showing a clever forward passing system that included L. Tanner and a young man named Mooney who didn't miss any of the forwards. L. Tanner slipped over for the second touchdown after L. Tanner had thrown a pass to Mooney good for 60 yards. Fee caught a short pass and put Shenango on the 6-yard line.

A short while later Tanner passed to Mooney again and put the East New Castles near the goal line, and then Tanner slipped over for the touchdown. The score at the end of the third period was Shenango 20, Washington 6.

Score On Pass.

Shenango scored in the fourth and final period with Tanner flipping a clever forward pass to Mooney, who caught the ball and raced over the goal line.

The Shenangos outplayed the Washingtons in all quarters of the game.

Washington high goes to Karns City this afternoon for a game with the Karns City high team. Shenango will be idle until next week meeting Mars next Friday.

McCarthy Picks Detroit Tigers To Win Series

Manager Of Yankees Says Tigers Best Team In Past Several Years

TIGER INFIELD ONE OF BEST

By MAX KASE
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The feverish fight atmosphere is clearing up under cooling draughts of world series speculation.

Joe McCarthy of the Yankees cast one solid vote for the Tigers. That goes even should the Cardinals overtake the Cubs. Being an American leaguer, it wouldn't be cricket for Joe to pick a National league entry. But the stadium chief justifies his choice on three counts:

1—Offensive power.
2—Defensive strength.
3—Steadiness and team play.

Good Infield.

"They have," Joe says, referring to the Tigers, "the best infield I have seen all season. It is a tight foursome, the best defensive unit in our league, with plenty of hitting strength to give any pitcher anxious moments."

The Messrs. Greenberg, hitting .336; Gehringer, hitting .325; Rogell, hitting .276, and Owen, hitting .259, will take a bow. This is no fabled "dream infield," no quartet which does everything perfectly, but they do enough things right and do them at the right time to make them impressive. They average .299 at the plate.

"Greenberg and Gehringer," McCarthy went on, "are tops. Hank was a most improved ball player this year. And that Gehringer—just try to hit a ball past him. He is everywhere. It's almost impossible to shove a grounder past him within feet of his station."

BITS ABOUT FOOTBALL

BILL SHAKESPEARE will be lost to the Notre Dame team by graduation in 1936 . . . but advices from South Bend are to the effect his place will be taken by a freshman prospect named William Penn . . . Purdue's first football coach, Albert Berg, a deaf mute, is hale and hearty at 72 in Philadelphia.

Confirmation comes upon the heels of the Louis-Baer million-dollar fight gate that the depression is defeated . . . there are bigger and better jumps on the intersectional schedule this year . . Pitt goes to Los Angeles Dec. 14 to try to get even with the Trojans, and seems to have a very good chance to do so . . . Southern California and Utah go to Honolulu to meet the University of Hawaii eleven . . . and U. S. C. also journeys east to meet Notre Dame . . Michigan goes to Columbia and Penn to Ann Arbor . . . Illinois goes to Los Angeles . . . University of Detroit goes to Lubbock, Texas, to meet Texas Tech . . . Colgate travels west for Iowa and Purdue . . . St. Mary's rides to New York to play Fordham.

Tonnage Note

Louisiana State has nine tackles averaging 206 pounds . . . only 412 pounds of them can play at once, of course . . . Building Note: new stands erected in Princeton Palmer stadium this fall increase seating capacity from 52,000 to 60,000. . . . . George Casey, Wisconsin end of several years back, recently passed an examination for the fire department in Chicago.

Coach Wallace Wade at Duke rates his quarterback Ace Parker as "a halfback who does all the things a halfback should do better than any back I ever coached" . . . which is pretty high praise, considering the slashing backs Wade mentored at Alabama.

Swellest statement by a coach so far must be that of Dick Harlow, Harvard's new coach, who says: "We have neither an inferiority complex here at Cambridge nor any delusions of grandeur" . . but, perhaps some intimations that might be construed as impressions of impregnability, eh Dick?

ELLWOOD INVADES BUTLER SATURDAY

MOTOR CAVALCADE TO FOLLOW TEAM

ELLWOOD CITY, Sept. 27.—An improved though hampered Ellwood City High grid team will journey to Butler Saturday for their annual clash with Heinzer coached eleven. With the reputation of highly colorful local team has attained and the fact it being "Father's Day" for Butler's first home game, a record crowd is anticipated.

With the loss of three valuable men for this game and affected by injuries, the locals are neverthless bent upon winning their third consecutive game and second Class AA contest. Light workouts have been held all week so as not to aggravate these injuries. Considerable time has been spent on perfecting a defense against an aerial attack and Butler's plays. The injured, Bill Young, Mike Kraynak, Jim Flannagan, who have bruised shoulders, and Tony Scopelite, a briused thigh, have been responding satisfactorily to treatments this week and are expected to be ready for action by game time.

Improvement Noticed

Coach "Denny" Schill and assistant "Dutch" Croft have worked hard in filling gaps in the local team. Perry seems to have won the injured Nick Frisk's position at right guard for the time being Rocco and Gibb will be on reserve. "Russia" Funari and George Roebuck have been sharing the quarterback duties. The former who is the fastest man on the squad will in all probability get the starting call. He will more than likely be shifted to halfback later in the game. Abe Pratt will start at center in place of Kraynak if the condition of the latter is not up to expectation.

The Ellwood Wolverines have made noticeable improvement on offense and defense this week. Assistant coach "Dutch" Croft has drilled the line so much, until even a smile of satisfaction appear on his face. Tammaro and Daufen are playing the tackle positions like a couple of veterans now.

The Tubers, who will be considerably outweighed by Butler Saturday, are expected to employ a deceptive running attack and clever passes. Dogged determination has been displayed by the team which is highly desirious of taking the Heinzermen into tow, for two reasons. First to avenge a previous defeat, and second, the most important, to fulfill a promise to their injured team mate Nick Frisk and bring back with them the football, emblematic of victory. The squad with the coaches will again visit Frisk at the local hospital this evening. Yesterday they sent up a basket of fruit. A light workout and signal drill is on tap for this afternoon.

Butler Is Strong

The locals will meet a tough, heavy, and resolved team when they stack up against the Heinzermen. Being defeated in two starts, 19-0 by Aliquippa and 21-0 by New Castle High, they are out for their first victory and start their home season auspiciously. It being Father's Day will be a further incentitive. This idea was copied from Coach Schill.

Coach Heinzer has been effecting a defense against Ellwood's wide open plays that he witnessed a week ago. He also plans to have a surprise or two in store for the locals. Butler will be without the services of one of its star half-bcks, Frannie Webster, who aggravated a knee injury in the New Castle game last week. But his shoes will be capably filled by "Dutch" Ross who tips the scales at 150 pounds and is a bolt of lightning on the gridiorn. Quarterback Bob Leith is the other principal threat in the backfield. The line boosts a 205 pound left tackle, in Gladis. The backfield average is 151 pounds and the line 171, against Ellwood's 157 in the backfield and 162 in the line. The game promises to be a nip and tuck affair.

To Send Big Delegation

The Wolverines will not lack support. One of the largest delegations to ever follow an Ellwood High team, will make the trip to Butler. A large motor cavalcade will arrive in Butler before game time which is 3 o'clock. (D. S. T.) The interest and enthusiasm of the local public has been completely captured with the clever showing of the local team. A large student body will be accompanied by its newly equipped band.

The probable line-up:

Ellwood		Butler
Hughes	L E.	Paffrath
Daufen	L T.	Gladis
Pishioneri	L G.	Tack
Kraynak	C.	Crissman
Perry	R G.	Levorini

Funari	Q B.	Leith

Stewart Warner was a strong and active auto accessory, going to a new high. Radio preferred B bettered its 1935 high. Snider Packing and California Packing improved.

Johns Mansville displayed an upward tendency in the building shares. Utilities staged a first hour flurry, with preferred shares prominent, but quieted down later.

Coca Cola ran up nearly 3 points. DuPont and American Can eased. Electrical equipments marked time, while farm machinery issues were steady.

Oils were inclined to sag. Coppers were reactionary. Anaconda suffering a moderate loss. Foods and liquors were steady.

The Hindu shook his head in polite regret.

"I do not think," he said, "that heaven can be very good, or the British would have grabbed it years ago."

Mussolini Chooses Historic Setting for Caesar Role

Copyright, 1935, Pathe News.

"One picture tells more than 10,000 words," runs the adage, and here is Benito Mussolini, the blacksmith's son, deliberately posing beside a 2,000-year-old statue of the first Caesar in Rome as he takes the salute of legions departing for Africa along a trail blazed by Caesar to conduct a new conquest. The photo was made less than two weeks ago. (Central Press)

NATURE PRESENTS—

Atlantic Salmon

WHERE FOUND
Both coasts of North Atlantic.

CHARACTERISTICS

TODAY'S DRAWING LESSON

This is probably the most widely known of all game fishes and was sought by early anglers as long ago as 1,800 years. Half of the salmon's life is spent in the ocean, where he feeds on small crabs, shrimps and other crustaceans. Salmon enter the rivers in the spring and go well toward the headwaters to establish spawning beds. This fish reaches an immense size on occasion, the largest on record weighing 83 pounds.

FIGURES IN "SUICIDE" LIBEL SUIT

Map of Canal Zone showing Fort Clayton

The arrest of a newspaper publisher of the Republic of Panama in the U. S. army-controlled Canal Zone has aroused considerable discussion in Panama. Charged by two U. S. army officers with criminal libel, Nelson Rounsevell, top right, publisher of the Panama American, was arrested when he stepped on Canal Zone soil and jailed. He finally was released on $2,500 bond. The libel suit was brought by Col. James V. Heidt, U. S. A., top left, commander of Fort Clayton, and Maj. Gen. Harold B. Fiske, lower right, commanding the Panama Canal department, U. S. A. Rounsevell is alleged to have referred to Fort Clayton as "suicide fort" after four soldiers had committed suicide there. He charged that the suicides were a direct result of "Simon Legree slave driving methods" employed by Col. Heidt and sanctioned by Gen. Fiske.

Honolulu Places O. K. On Legalized Vice Segregation

Police Chief, With Asiatic Force, Has Unique Policies

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 27—Policing Honolulu is a peculiar job directed by an unusual chief W. A. Gabrielson, formerly of San Diego and Berkeley, Cal.

Honolulu deals with its vice frankly and openly. There are 16 "hotels" operated under police protection and police regulations which include regular examination of the inmates by physicians and such rules as: No girls on the streets after 9:30 p. m., no street solicitation; no girls allowed on the beaches on the Honolulu side of the island, and no male representatives of the "hotels."

"The churches, city and the army" said Gabrielson, "agreed this was the best way to handle the situation.

"And it IS the best way," he added. "We have no trouble such as other cities have with vice."

Taking the writer on a tour of the "Paradise of the Pacific," Chief Gabrielson announced: "This is one police force that has enough men; plenty for all purposes; probably the only department in the world that isn't crying for more officers."

Yet Gabrielson's territory is the combined city and county of Honolulu, and this county includes the island of Oahu on which Honolulu is located and a few more islands including Midney, 1,300 miles to the westward.

The Honolulu police work with military precision, marching into their squadroom and going through a manual of arms as shifts change—whipping out pistols, handcuffs and flashlights by the numbers and presenting them to higher officers for inspection.

A shift standing at attention reveals the truth of the boast that Honolulu is the "cross road of the Pacific." Of 100 policemen in one shift only two are white. The rest are Hawaiian, Chinese, Japanese, Portuguese and various mixtures of these races.

But they are fast workers. As a test, Chief Gabrielson told the big Chinese officer handling the radio to call various radio-equipped cars. The answers came by phone in a very few minutes.

Then the chief ordered the "general alarm" lights turned on—big red lights on Diamond Head and the hills back of Honolulu. They flashed and almost immediately the switchboard was swamped with incoming calls from prompt officers.

An army officer said that disease at the large Hawaiian army posts is one-third less prevalent than at any other occupied by U. S. troops.

Gangsters and major crooks never have invaded Honolulu.

"We don't let them light," explained Gabrielson. "This is such a small city and we keep such a close watch on incoming ships that big criminals are spotted immediately. We boot them right back to the mainland.

Horseshoe Tossing Rises In Esteem

(International News Service)

BOSTON — Horseshoe pitching, better known as barnyard golf, is becoming almost as popular as bridge hereabouts. Vacant lots have been turned into playing rinks and short tracks of land adjacent homes have been given over to the game, where the clanging of irons is heard for hours at a time.

Women are becoming fascinated and in many spots leagues have been formed, teams vieing for honors with a competitive spirit that is almost amazing.

HAVE GUESTS AND ELEPHANTS, TOO

(International News Service)

ASHTABULA, O., Sept. 27. — Neighbors, as a rule, don't object to taking care of the canary, cat, or dog for the vacationist but they do draw the line at looking after the welfare of pet elephants.

That is why residents gaped when a truck and trailer carrying three elephants, total weight eight tons, rolled into town. It was Mr. and Mrs. Louis Reed, of Chatham, N. Y., arriving with their pets for a visit with Mrs. Reed's father, Frank Reed, of nearby Austinburg. Mrs. Reed is the owner of the dancing elephants.

It worked out all right. The farmer could now get a big price for his hogs if he had any hogs.

Rabbi Katz To Open New Year Services

Rabbi Pinchos Katz will conduct appropriate Rosh-Ha-Shanah New Year services at Temple Israel synagogue beginning tonight.

Beginning tonight, Jewry the world over, will usher in the festival of New Year, known in Hebrew as "Rosh-Ha-Shanah." With the celebration of the New Year the Jewish people will open the year 5696 of the Hebrew calendar.

PROTECTING THE BLIND

In the course of a baseball game the umpire gave one or two doubtful decisions against the home side. The wrath of the spectators was kindled against him, and he had to have police protection at the end of the game. Back in the dressing room he warmly thanked his escort.

"Don't thank us, mister!" said the biggest policeman; "we always look after a blind man!"

Aliquippa Man Is Injured In Brawl

(International News Service)

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Sept. 27—Henry Zedancevich, 22, of Aliquippa, was in a Rochester hospital today with a possible skull fracture received, according to police, during a drunken brawl in a saloon here. Six men were held by authorities.
